Refugees Say Russians Invaded Chinese Territory

TROOPS SEND PEOPLE INTO NEAR PANIC

General Exodus of Citizens Follows and Chinese Forces Flee to City

FEAR WAR OUTBREAK

Hundreds Arriving Hourly At Manchuria After a Trip of Real Hardship

HARBIN, Manchuria, July 24.—(UP)—A technical invasion of Chinese territory by Russian troops has occurred at Manchuria, on the northwestern border of Manchuria, the vanguard of refugees from Manchuria who reached here today informed me.

Panic prevails in Manchuria, they said. The refugees told how Russian troops advanced quietly over the border and camped near the city. The sight of the troops and their tents spread terror among the polyglot population of Manchuria, and a general exodus began.

The Chinese troops hastily retreated into the city. Six armed Russian trains also appeared in sight of Manchuria, where they remained.

The Chinese military commanders' carts and horses and forced coolies to build three lines of trenches north of Manchuria. Soldiers were sent into the trenches.

The residents of the city, fearing that war would break out momentarily, fled in great numbers along the railroad.

"White" Russians and Chinese gathered what they could of their possessions and piled into trains, which were crowded beyond capacity. Others obtained automobiles, carts, horses, mules and camels and began the trek towards Harbin.

Bugiat and Mongol sheep herders and camel men mingled with Chinese, Russians and Japanese traders in the exodus. The trains were so packed that the collection of tickets was impossible.

A steady stream poured by rail and road to the southeast, along the arid plains and low hills. Hundreds were arriving here hourly today after the trip of hundreds of miles from Manchuria, which can be accomplished under normal rail conditions in 24 hours.

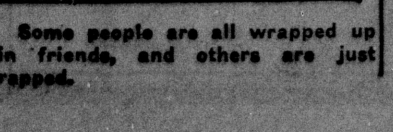

VICTIM OF RABIES SOUGHT IN COMPTON

COMPTON, Calif., July 24.—(UP)—Compton authorities today were endeavoring to locate a small boy believed doomed to death within 90 days if he is not found.

The boy was bitten twice by a mad dog while delivering handbills here. He fled before his name was learned. Later when the Compton Health center found the dog had rabies there was no way of locating the victim.

Physicians said that unless he is soon discovered and treated he will almost certainly die of rabies within 90 days.

PACKING PLANT TO OPEN HERE ABOUT AUG. 15

New Machinery for Packing Pimientos Installed—Will Employ 350

NEW MACHINERY FOR PACKING

pimientos in glass is being installed at the plant of the California Packing Corporation on East First street prior to the opening of the factory the middle of August.

With the opening of the plant 275 women and between 60 and 70 men will be employed until frost destroys the pimiento plants, this time usually falling somewhere near Christmas, according to Cecil Wilson, bookkeeper at the local branch of the corporation. The payroll will average about $7000 weekly, it is expected.

The quality of the crop of pimientos to be harvested this year is very good according to plant officials and the peppers canned here are raised in the Talbert, Stanton, Irvine and Anaheim districts. The pimientos to be canned in the glass receptacles will be of the highest grade. The best grades of products canned are put out under the Del Monte label.

Green chilis will be the first product put up when the cannery opens and these will furnish work for the employees until the pimientos have ripened a few weeks later. The cannery here is devoted exclusively to the packing of these two products although in years past apricots and green beans have been handled by the local factory.

After being harvested the pimientos go through a complicated process before reaching the consumer. The sacks are opened in the warehouse and the contents graded. The pimientos are then washed and sealed in oil to loosen the outside skin. The skin and seeds are removed by peelers and the peppers are again washed and blanched before reaching the canning tables where they are graded and packed either in tins or glass. The oil is heated to 40 degrees in removing the skin.

The factory has been entirely renovated and the machinery overhauled during the past few months. The interior of the plant when in operation presents the appearance of a great kitchen with its white walls and fixtures and its corns of workers in blue and white uniforms.

PASSES HALFWAY MARK

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 24.—(UP)—Continuing his assault on the 59-year-old record of the Robert E. Lee, Dr. Louis Leroy today had passed the halfway mark from New Orleans to St. Louis in his speedboat "Bogie." Dr. Leroy reached Memphis, the 745-mile post, shortly before midnight last night and headed northward for Caruthersville, where he expected to stop for fuel before noon.

POLICE SEARCH SOUTHLAND FOR MISSING GIRL

Daughter of Prominent La Habra Family Disappears in Long Beach

POLICE over Southern California were still baffled today over the mysterious disappearance of Miss Helen DeGray, pretty seventeen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emory D. DeGray, prominent La Habra business man, who disappeared Thursday at Long Beach after she is alleged to have asked Kenneth Agnew, a schoolmate of Fullerton to take her there to see a friend.

A check up of the girl's close friends as to her future plans and her sudden decision to quit school at the summer session at Fullerton High school where she was making up work due to a recent illness, has failed to reveal any definite clues as to the girl's whereabouts. Rumors that the missing girl had been seen in Long Beach and Los Angeles have spurred the searches on with renewed hope but without avail.

The parents are at a loss to know of their daughter's decision to leave home and seek a job for herself as she told her companion when she left his car at the intersection of Anaheim boulevard and Cherry avenue at Long Beach Thursday, vowing then that she should never see her again. It is known that she had about $10 with her at the time of her disappearance. Brooding over the loss of an invalid brother who recently died is taken as a possible cause of her departure.

Nothing out of the ordinary had occurred on the morning of her departure except that she complained of a terrible headache, but left for school as usual and after checking in her books at the high school, informed the teachers that she was quitting school. Miss DeGray is said to be a good typist and it is believed that she may seek work in this line.

When last seen she was wearing a red figured silk sport dress, red velvet jacket, white felt hat, white oxfords and suntan stockings. She was an officer of the Fullerton chapter of Jobs Daughters and wore a pin of this order, a wrist watch with her name engraved on it.

She was five feet and three inches high and weighed 130 pounds. Her eyes are grey and she has blond hair. A cross scar on the left arm is a mark of identification also. Anyone finding her should get in touch with Charles Wallace, chief of police at La Habra or any other police official, to aid the parents in their search.

U. S. SETTLES LAST SEALING SHIP CLAIM

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(UP)—Pelagic sealing troubles that started in 1886 with the signing of a treaty between Japan, Great Britain and the United States, has at last been brought to an end.

Capt. William Thornley, San Francisco, received $12,000 today as the last claim against the government for sealing ships in the Bering Sea in 1886.

Payment of this amount closes the log on years of litigation during which period the government paid out $1,855,663 in claims.

Orange County Gets $84,811 In Auto Taxes

County's Share Is Based on Registration of 46,000 Vehicles Here

THE STATE of California cut a juicy license tax melon today and Orange county received a slice amounting to $84,811.

The "melon" was the total amount of registration fees collected from automobiles and other motor vehicles for the first six months of 1929. The aggregate amount paid in by 1,859,523 motor vehicles was $6,335,344.90.

This county's share was based on a registration of 46,145 vehicles, divided as follows: Automobiles, 42,555; solid tire trucks, 288; pneumatic-tired trucks, 1559; motorcycles, 177, and trailers, both pneumatic and solid-tired, 1566.

Among the rural counties Orange county ranked third in its share of the apportionment. Fresno county, with 110,731.24, and Santa Clara county, with 95,623.81, were ahead of this section.

Los Angeles county led the state with registrations numbering 755,775 vehicles, for which it received $1,889,061.28. San Francisco county was next with 142,321 registrations and $261,575.98, while Alameda county stood third with 133,166 vehicles and $244,794.74. San Diego ranked next, with 70,697 registrations and an apportionment of $129,936.11.

The registration fee money which you pay to the state when you get the license plates for your automobile or truck, is divided "50-50" between the state highway division and the various counties. Salaries paid to traffic officers in the county first are deducted, the total for the first six months this year amounting to $508,310.50.

Deductions are made from the apportionment of the counties amounting to a total of $508,310.50, this representing funds advanced to pay the salaries of traffic officers during the first six months of the year and reserved for their salaries up to August 14. After that date all traffic officers pass to the direct control of the state and their salaries become an operating charge against the division of motor vehicles.

The actual gain in fees paid into the division during the period was $1,164,826.20 over the same period of 1928.

Registrations showed the enormous gain of 155,151 over last year. Registrations of all types of motor vehicles and trailers were announced as follows: Passenger cars, 1,737,961; solid tire trucks, 19,462; pneumatic tire trucks, 57,473; motorcycles, 81,007; trailers, 36,527.

Fees from passenger cars alone for the period amounted to the staggering sum of $5,632,567.05. Transfer fees amounted to $302,714.50.

The registration totals do not take into consideration the thousands of vehicles used by public service corporations, cities, counties and other political subdivisions that are exempt from the payment of registration fees.

Trial Of College Man On Murder Charge Is Opened

COURTROOM, Columbus, O., July 24.—(UP)—Professor James Howard Snook, formerly of Ohio State university, went to trial in common pleas court here today for the murder of 24-year-old Theora Hix, medical student at the university.

Promptly at 9 a. m. Judge Henry Scarlett ascended the courtroom flanked by spectators who had been waiting since 8 a. m. when the doors were opened. About 150 spectators were seated while probably 50 more were allowed standing room.

Fully two-thirds of the spectators were women, well dressed in airy summer dresses, appropriate to the muggy warm day. There was a surprising proportion of the audience composed of girls of college age.

LOUDEN AVERS NO OTHER PLAN OR COMPROMISE

Associated Chambers Head Speaks On Flood Control at Placentia

"THE DEFEAT of the water conservation and flood control issue has left the county supervisors high and dry; they cannot ask for an election on another plan, for there is no other plan," Lotus Loudon, president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county, declared in a talk before the Placentia Chamber of Commerce members yesterday.

"The word compromise as applied to the Associated Chambers committee is a misnomer, for there can be no compromise. The only possible thing to do is to bring public sentiment to bear on the situation."

He asserted that the water issue is in a worse situation than ever before.

An informal discussion of the situation followed the reading by the secretary, Thomas Dickrell, of an article in the Orange Daily News giving the stand of the Orange Chamber of Commerce on the subject. Those taking part in the discussion were Loudon, H. H. Hale, president of the Anaheim Union Water company and member of the advisory board of the flood control district; James and John Tuffrey and Ralph McFadden, orange growers of Placentia and Louis Jacobson.

A motion was made by James Tuffrey and passed unanimously that the secretary be instructed to write a letter to Willard Smith, chairman of the board of supervisors, in approval of the stand taken by Smith in an article published Monday in the daily papers replying to statements of Col. S. H. Finley.

Declaring that the engineers and advisory board were not prejudiced, he intimated that an investigation might be asked.

H. H. Hale spoke in behalf of the water companies, which he said are trying to protect their vested rights. Three thousand acres in the canyon are owned by the water companies and they wish to be assured of an undiminished supply.

Louis Jacobson, while against the bond issue, denied that he was backing the Water Users' association. He said there was no question about the need of water.

"I believe in building the necessary dams, but the present plan takes care of a flood double the size any of us have ever seen in this valley," he said. "I do not mind building for my children, but I object to building for my great grand children."

In answer to this, Ralph McFadden, in a heated argument, stated that the people of Orange county did not want to live under a dam only 50 per cent efficient.

$10,000,000 MINE COMPANY PLANNED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(UP)—To link up a group of California gold and silver mines, a $10,000,000 mining company will be formed shortly.

The company will be known as the American Mines Consolidated. It will operate a chain of mines on a large scale. The new company will be a Delaware corporation with the financial backing of a group of New York and Boston capitalists.

Thomas Allen Box, chairman of the board of directors of Bridging the Golden Gate association, will go to Placentia with Harry Eason, wholesale lumber dealer of San Francisco, to secure the signature of A. Barrington-Gould to an option on the Placentia Gold Mining company's property of 800 acres of mining territory.

No Indication That Aviators To Come Down

Congratulations Pouring in On Birdmen Who Established New Mark

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 24.—(UP)—Pounding out the hours with Monotonous regularity, the St. Louis-Robin passed the 279th consecutive hour of its world record endurance flight at 1:17 p. m. central time today.

Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien, pilots of the trim orange monoplane, reported everything "O. K." except that "a couple of cylinder sound like they have the toothache."

But the Robin kept soaring with no apparent difficulty and ground observers believed the "toothache" was as much imagination as anything else, for Jackson said in another note:

"Does our motor sound any different than it did; have heard it so long I can't tell. Go to sleep by it, wake up by it, eat by it, do just about everything by it, around it and behind it."

"When we get through here, we'll need a motor at home to go to sleep by."

In a cheery postscript Jackson scribbled:

"Obie is snoring. Don't know what the time is, but can dance it."

A little later the fliers dropped a formal note to St. Louis newspapermen, thanking them "from the bottom of our hearts for the kindness and interest taken in our flight so far."

Whatever the ultimate future may hold in store for them, Jackson and O'Brien reiterated in a note dropped to cheering thousands at Lambert St. Louis field:

"We can last as long as there is any run left in the motor, which doesn't seem to be weakening."

The motor, a Challenger six-cylinder air-cooled affair which took them aloft at 7:17 a. m. a week ago last Saturday and carried them on the longest flight in the history of aviation, hummed reassuringly.

Its roar was heard above a crowd of approximately 20,000 admirers which gathered at the field last night to witness a display of fireworks touched off in their honor.

Messages of congratulation came in such numbers that additional

War Secretary To Appoint Army Board

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(UP)—Secretary of War Good today announced that he would appoint a board of army officers to investigate the entire army program with a view to elimination of obsolete branches and activities within the next few days.

He also announced that the board's recommendations for economy, under the project of President Hoover and Good, will be made available to the budget bureau as soon as decided upon—in time to be made effective in the appropriations for the fiscal year 1931 which congress will pass this winter.

COOLIDGE BACK IN WASHINGTON FOR 24 HOURS

Former President Attends Proclamation of Anti-War Ceremonies

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(UP)—Calvin Coolidge—private citizen and insurance executive—came back to the capital today. The former president arrived at Union station at 7:05 a. m. for a 12-hour stay, during which he will participate in White House ceremonies incident to proclamation of the Kellogg anti-war pact.

His return was inauspicious. Traveling as any other ordinary citizen, Coolidge stepped from a Pullman car to be greeted by Everett Sanders, who was his White House secretary, George Akerson, secretary to President Hoover, Col. Campbell Hodges, White House military aide, and Col. E. W. Starling, secret service man.

Travelers in the station who recognized the former chief executive as he walked from the train shed through the presidential waiting room were greeted with a smile.

The scene was in sharp contrast to his departure less than five months ago when thousands gathered in the station to cheer him as he left for Northampton after the inaugural ceremonies.

Coolidge said less than 10 words as he walked from the station to a waiting White House limousine, driven by Francis Robinson, who was his chauffeur while he was president.

Outside the station about 20 persons had gathered to see Coolidge return. He posed for a bat-

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 24.—(UP)—The most violent earthquake recorded here since 1896 shook the whole coast of Iceland at 5:45 o'clock last evening.

The quake was so severe that the local seismograph apparatus was broken. Several houses were damaged but no casualties had been reported today. It was believed the damage along the south coast may have been greater than in this vicinity. The tremor was believed to have been most severe in the vicinity of Mount Hekla.

BANDIT TORTURING WOMAN CAPTURED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(UP)—Three alleged bandits were arrested today, one of whom was caught in the act of torturing a woman.

Answering a message from a person unknown, police went to a lodging house where the disturbance was reported. Hearing screams the police were directed to a locked room where they found Mrs. Lucy Elliott being dragged about the floor by her hair.

The man inflicting the torture was shouting:

"Give me all the money. Tell me where it is. I'll give you three minutes to do it."

KELLOGG'S PACT GOES IN EFFECT

President Hoover in Speech Says Protocol New Step In International Law

COOLIDGE IS PRESENT

Diplomats from Practically Every Nation on Earth Take Part In Ceremony

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(UP)—The Kellogg peace pact was greeted as a proposal to the conscience of civilization in an address by President Hoover in the east room of the White House today marking the formal inauguration of the new world anti-war treaty—the first of its kind in history.

The president called upon the nations of the world to unite "to extend the policy which it so nobly sets forth." The Kellogg treaty had become in effect just a short time before when at noon Japanese Ambassador Ichiro Hayashi deposited at the state department the document registering his government's formal acceptance of the pact. This completed the deposit of ratification by the 15 original signatories of the treaty and made it officially effective.

Diplomatic representatives of countries which have signed or agreed to adhere to the treaty were present in the impressive ceremony in the east room and the world listened in by radio.

Mr. Hoover said the "magnificent response" of the world to the Kellogg pact was indicated by fact that in addition to the 15 signatories, 31 nations had formally deposited their notice of adherence to the pact at the state department and that several other governments had indicated they intended to join in the treaty.

Hoover Speaks

After quoting to the assembled diplomats the terms of the Kellogg pact, President Hoover said: "That was a proposal to the conscience and idealism of civilized nations. It suggested a new step in international law, rich with meaning, pregnant with new ideas in the conduct of world relations. It represented a platform from which there is instant appeal to the public opinion of the world as to specific acts and deeds."

The president congratulated former president Coolidge and former secretary of state Kellogg for their part in the negotiation of the pact.

ICELAND SHAKEN BY SEVERE EARTHQUAKE

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 24.—(UP)—The most violent earthquake recorded here since 1896 shook the whole coast of Iceland at 5:45 o'clock last evening.

The quake was so severe that the local seismograph apparatus was broken. Several houses were damaged but no casualties had been reported today. It was believed the damage along the south coast may have been greater than in this vicinity. The tremor was believed to have been most severe in the vicinity of Mount Hekla.

Huntington Beach Man Killed In Oil Field Accident

PLAN INQUEST LATE TODAY IN WELL MISHAP

Struck on the head by a brake lever while working on the H. No. 6 well of the Standard Oil company, in the Huntington Beach oil field this morning, Verne A. Bradshaw, suffered injuries which caused his death an hour later in the Anaheim sanitarium.

Coroner Charles D. Brown was to conduct an inquest in the Dixon funeral parlors in Huntington Beach at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Bradshaw was engaged in pulling tubing from the well when the brake lever struck him. Following emergency treatment he was rushed to the Anaheim sanitarium.

The oil worker, who was single, lived with his mother, Mrs. Rose Bradshaw, on Lake street, Huntington Beach.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed today.

The accident occurred at 3 o'clock this morning.

OLIVE

OLIVE, July 24.—A chicken dinner was served Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Purl Shell to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hight and son, Robert; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Chandler and daughter, Lucille; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pister and son, Charles; Roy Cavett, of Orange; Robert Evans, of Santa Ana; Everett Edwards, Mrs. Eva Miller, of Orange; Jack Harris, of Long Beach; Elmer Guldge, Leone Shell, daughter of the hosts; Mr. and Mrs. Purl Shell. The dinner was served on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hutton and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wishnack in Placentia Sunday.

Theodore Mieger, Harold Mieger and Miss Alberta Curi attended the ball game at Wrigley field Sunday afternoon.

Don Feenester and family were Sunday visitors in San Fernando. Margaret and Grace Kreidt are spending the week with Mrs. Carl Reuter in Banning.

Miss Alberta Wishnack celebrated her first birthday last week with a party arranged by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wishnack. She was presented with a large birthday cake in pink and white, with one candle, by her aunt, Mrs. Arthur Paschall. Ice cream, cake and punch were served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Paschall, Mr. and Mrs. Walther Timme, Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Wishnack, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wishnack, Donald and Gertrude Timme, Robert and David Wishnack.

P. B. McCarty, who recently disposed of the Olive department store, is leaving this week for Colorado Springs, Colo., to meet his sister, who is very ill. Together they will go to St. Louis, Mo., their former home.

The following boys formed a week-end house party in the cottage of Robert Paulus at Newport Beach: Elmer Helm, Walther Meier, Edwin Lemke, Arnold Otte, August Kahlen of Anaheim, and Henry Ruesch. They were joined Sunday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. August Lemke, Arthur Lemke, and the Misses Florence and Esther Helm and Meta Paulus.

FOOD VARIETY

Buy a different vegetable every day that you can and see what a real variety you can have in hot weather. When dinner is different each night, the task of preparing it seems less arduous.

WHOLESONE DIET AID TO HEALTH

A Little Sugar Helps Us Enjoy the Foods We Need

The public should know the truths about food and diet as they are related to health.

The latest medical opinion emphasizes that we need varied foods and balanced foods, including milk, cereals, vegetables, fruits and meats. It isn't enough to eat one or two kinds of foods, and it isn't wise to eliminate any important food from the diet.

As every woman responsible for feeding a household knows, taste is the controlling factor in getting women, children or men to eat foods that are sufficiently varied. This is exactly where sugar comes into the picture, for, as has been pointed out, sugar is the greatest condimental food in the world. A little sugar develops the flavors of healthful cereals. A sprinkling of sugar makes currants, blackberries and other delectable meats highly enjoyable.

A group of women cooking experts recently uncovered the old secret that a dash of sugar in vegetables while they are cooking brings out new and enjoyable flavors. Good cooks know how to use a little sugar to develop the flavors of meats and other delectable meats dishes. Correct amounts of sugar used in milk desserts help children and adults eat enough milk. The most enjoyable meal is the one that is topped off with stewed fruit, ice cream, or candy desserts.

Help adults and children to eat healthfully. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar

Town Enjoys Ice Cream At Low Price

ORLAND, Calif., July 24.—(UP)—An orgy of ice cream eating is on in this city today—with small boys making the most of a price war among dealers that broke out yesterday.

Ice cream is quoted at 25 cents per quart, the lowest mark it has hit here in many years. Everyone is buying the cold dish, with dealers watching each other for further slashes in the price.

The war began when a local store advertised ice cream at 29 cents a quart. Other stores fell into line with this price and then a dairy company cut the price to 25 cents. Now every store in the city handling ice cream has announced this price.

tery of cameramen and then stepped into the waiting machine. He was driven past the capitol, down historic Pennsylvania avenue to the Willard hotel where he has reserved the suite which he occupied six years ago when he was vice president.

The former president was dressed in a dark blue business suit, and wore a stiff-brimmed straw hat. His left wrist was bandaged and appeared to be in splints.

"I hurt it fishing, its almost well now," Coolidge explained.

Washington was greatly interested in the return of Coolidge and was disappointed that the former president's wife did not accompany him on the trip.

After greeting callers at the hotel, Coolidge went to the White House. Here in the staid old mansion, where he was president of the world's greatest republic, Coolidge witnessed completion of one of the outstanding achievements of his administration—proclamation of the general pact for the renunciation of war.

Coolidge's stay at the White House was short. He remained only for the ceremonies and the official luncheon.

He appeared glad to return to Washington, although he was reticent as ever about himself.

Alva E. Reed today brought suit for divorce against Hester A. Reed, charging desertion. The couple were married in Santa Ana in 1921, and separated on June 11, 1925, according to the complaint.

KELLOGG PACT GOES IN FORCE AT NOON TODAY

Both were honored guests of ceremony which presented the most impressive diplomatic gathering Washington has witnessed since the assemblage of the naval limitation conference in 1921.

President Hoover also paid high tribute to foreign minister Briand of France for having initiated the correspondence which culminated in the world wide treaty.

"I dare predict that the influence of the treaty for the renunciation of war will be felt in a large proportion of all future international acts," President Hoover continued. "The magnificent opportunity and the compelling duty now open to us should spur us on to the fulfillment of every opportunity to implement this treaty to extend the policy it so nobly sets forth."

Treaty On Hand

The treaty, bound in green hand-tooled morocco, reposed before President Hoover in a similarly colored box of the same material.

Underneath it was an ordinary blotting pad. President Hoover sat in the large arm chair he uses at the dining table while the chairs occupied by the diplomats were ordinary wooden chairs which have been used in the East room for years.

President Hoover signed the proclamation which he read to the diplomats upstairs shortly before the ceremony began.

A large group of photographers swarmed into the East room half an hour before the ceremony was to begin, and the lower end of the historic room had the appearance of a moving picture studio. A small crowd gathered along the sidewalks in front of the executive mansion, peering through the iron grating as the foreign diplomats rode up in their cars. Following is the text of President Hoover's address:

In April, 1928, as a result of discussion between our secretary of state of the United States and the minister of foreign affairs of France the president directed Secretary Kellogg to propose to the nations of the world that they should enter into a binding agreement as follows:

"Article 1.—The high contracting parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

Article 2.—The high contracting parties agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means."

Is New Step

That was a proposal to the conscience and idealism of civilized nations. It suggested a new step in international laws, rich with meaning, pregnant with new ideas in the conduct of world relations. It represented a platform from which there is instant appeal to the public opinion of the world as to specific acts and deeds. Magnificent response of the world to these proposals is well indicated by those now signatories to its provisions. Under the terms of the treaty there have been deposited in Washington the ratifications of the 15 signatory nations—that is, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, the Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Poland, Union of South Africa, and the United States of America.

Beyond this the treaty has today become effective also with respect to 31 other countries, the governments of which have deposited with the government of the United States instruments evidencing their definite adherence to the treaty. These countries are: Afghanistan, Albania, Austria, Bulgaria, China, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Egypt, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, Guatemala, Hungary, Iceland, Latvia, Liberia, Lithuania, the Netherlands, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Portugal, Peru, Rumania, Russia, Kingdom of the Serbs, Croatia and Slovenes, Siam, Spain, Sweden and Turkey.

Moreover according to information received through diplomatic channels the instruments of definitive adherence of Greece, Honduras, Persia, Switzerland and Venezuela have been fully completed according to their constitutional methods and are now on the way to Washington for deposit.

Congratulate Assembly

I congratulate this assembly. The entire world upon the coming into force of this additional instrument of humane endeavor to do away with war as an instrument of national policy and to obtain by Pacific means alone the settlement of international disputes.

I am glad of this opportunity to pay merited tribute to the two statesmen whose names the world has properly adopted in its designation of this treaty. To Aristide Briand, minister of foreign affairs of France, we owe the inception of the treaty and to his zeal is due a very large share of the success which attended the subsequent negotiations; to Frank B. Kellogg, then secretary of state of the United States, we owe its expansion to the proportions of a treaty open to the entire world and destined, as I most confidently hope shortly to include among its parties every country of the world.

Mr. Stimson has sent forward today a message of felicitation to M. Briand and to the people of France for whom he speaks. I am happy, Mr. Kellogg, to extend to you, who represented the people of the United States with such untiring devotion and with such a high degree of diplomatic skill in the negotiation of this treaty, their everlasting gratitude.

We are honored here by the presence of President Coolidge under whose administration this great step in world peace was initiated. Under his authority and with his courageous support you, Mr. Kellogg, succeeded in this great service. And I wish to mark also the high appreciation in which we hold Senators Borah and Swanson for their leadership during its confirmation in the senate.

Many I ask you who represent governments which have accepted this treaty, now a part of their supreme law and their most sacred obligations, to convey to them the high appreciation of the government of the United States that through their cordial collaboration an act so auspicious for the future happiness of mankind has now been consummated. I dare predict that the influence of the treaty for the renunciation of war will be felt in a large proportion of all future international acts. The magnificent opportunity and the compelling duty now open to us should spur us on to the fulfillment of every opportunity that is calculated to implement this treaty and to extend the policy which it so nobly sets forth.

Proclaims Treaty

I have today proclaimed the treaty to the American people in language as follows:

"Whereas a treaty between the president of the United States of America, Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Emperor of India, His Majesty the King of Italy, His Majesty the Emperor of Japan, the president of the Republic of Poland, and the president of the Czechoslovak Republic, providing for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy and that the solution of disputes among parties shall never be sought except by pacific means, was concluded and signed by their respective plenipotentiaries at Paris on August twenty-seven, 1928, and Whereas, it stipulated in the said treaty that it shall take effect as between the high contracting parties as soon as all the several instruments of ratification shall have been deposited at Washington.

"And Whereas, the said treaty has been duly ratified on the parts of all the high contracting parties and their several instruments of ratification have been deposited with the government of the United States of America, the last on July twenty-fourth, 1928:

"Now, therefore, be it known that I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, have caused the said treaty to be made public to the end that the same and every article and clause thereof may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States and the citizens thereof."

HELD TO TRIAL ON NON-SUPPORT COUNT

Charged with non-support of four children, Albert Hoffman, Santa Ana man, was held to answer to the superior court from Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning.

Bail was fixed at $1500, which the defendant did not make.

The complaining witness in the case is Ella Hoffman. The children are 10, 7, 6 and 3 years of age.

LOTTIE PICKFORD WEDS THIRD TIME

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—(UP)—Lottie Pickford, screen actress and sister of Mary Pickford, was on her third honeymoon today, this time as the wife of Russell O. Gillard, a mortician.

The wedding of the couple was accomplished with secrecy and was solemnized Monday night, it became known.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillard will visit at the bridegroom's former home in Michigan and later will tour the east before going to Honolulu.

the job at the field. Among the telegraph operators were put on first received was from Loren Mendell and Roland Reinhart, pilots of the Angeleno, whose record of 246:43:32 the St. Louis Robin eclipsed.

Deserve Credit

"Those boys deserve a lot of credit. We take off our hats to them. Its a great thing for aviation," said the message.

Aside from many similar messages from aviation leaders of the nation, Jackson and O'Brine were remembered by General Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, who was here enroute to Europe when the record was made.

"Congratulations to the intrepid aviators, O'Brine and Jackson, for their great duration flight. The spirit of St. Louis has conquered another time."

Special money awards to the flyers, now total more than $2648 daily, to say nothing of trick offers to elaborate suites in exclusive hotels to rest up in after the flight ends.

T. S. Curtis-Robertson company, makers of the St. Louis Robin, wired the flyers they would receive $100 for each hour more than the record, so that by 3:00 a. m. today, Jackson and O'Brine were $1200 richer.

A department store chipped in another $100 ad ay, and the municipal opera stood ready to donate a dollar an hour for every hour the plane has stayed aloft.

The first word out of the flyers fater achieving the record came in the form of the following note, dropped to attendants at the field: "Hello, everybody, I suppose you would like to know how long we will stay up. We don't know how many more hours we have left in our ship and motor, but we are going to find out."

One In Race

I see we have only one endurance ship left to outstay, that is the Houston. Here's hoping. So far the fight hasn't bothered either of us and we can last as long as there is any run left in the motor, which doesn't seem to be weakening.

"You can hand us 115 gallons and the usual amount of oil. And say can you hand us some more green and white very cartridge and we will put on a show up here, but will save our red ones for emergencies. Everything fine, motor o. k. and so are we."

"RED AND O'BRIEN."

"P. S.: O'Brine is in the back and I guess he thinks he's in the post office. He is opening the mail and is throwing envelopes out the gas holes."

"RED."

TOURIST DIES IN LA HABRA CAMP

A certificate of death was issued this morning by Coroner Charles D. Brown in the case of Henry Randolph Crane, 65, Santa Cruz man, who dropped dead in an auto park in La Habra early this morning.

Acute indigestion is believed to have been the cause of death.

Crane, 11th is wife, was on his way from Santa Cruz to San Diego and drove 400 miles yesterday, his widow reported. He complained of not feeling well early this morning and a few minutes later fell dead.

Coroner Brown was called and made an investigation, after which he decided not to hold an inquest.

NEW WELL ON PRODUCTION IN H. B. OIL AREA

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 24

The Bardeen well of the Rich-field Oil company, located at the corner of Garfield and Holly, new-est completion in the old part of the local field, was placed on the pump yesterday and looks like a nice producer, good for 200 to 400 barrels. Bottom of the hole is 4860. The company took 180 feet of oil sand and the well is finished with a 4-3/4 perforated liner. The 13-1/4 inch casing was car-ried down to 3500 feet and 9-inch casing finishes the hole to the ce-ment job for the liner, thus af-fording quick deepening of the hole when the present over production bugaboo ends in the oil game. All wells being drilled in this field now by the major companies are following this plan. Local royalty owners in the Bardeen well are Charles Burleycamp, D. W. Hus-ton, J. E. Huston and C. W. Pat-rick.

The Richfield Oil company is erecting a derrick on its Heaton and Glimpse lease on Huntington avenue a block off Garfield street. This is to be a test of the 4800-foot zone and is of interest to land owners in the extreme northwest section of the field. It is adjoin-ing the Heaton and Glimpse oil well machine shop, one of the pioneer industries in the field.

The Richfield has spotted a der-riek on the Kieswa lease, formerly the Paige lease near the corner of Garfield and Westminster in the heart of the old field. Drilling will start on this location early in August. Announcement as to the depth of this test will not be known until the permit is asked from the state. It is regarded in oil circles as not improbable that the Richfield may make a deep test on the Kieswa lease. The lease comprises an acre of ground fa-vorably located in the most high-ly productive section of the field.

The Standard Oil company has three projects underway in the Huntington Beach field. The new project is well No. 13 on the Thomson farm on the east side, on Hampshire street. It is in pro-ven territory. The Standard is re-drilling Bolsa 1, discovery well in the field, located on the Bolsa Chico Gun club property which contains 42 producing wells. In-stead of paying dues to this club, the members draw handsome di-vidends. Memberships that origi-nally cost $100 have sold as high as $50,000 and there are no more for sale even at this price, there be-ing only 50 memberships in the club, many of which have passed into estates, to enrich the heirs of the lucky sportsmen who com-posed the original membership. The club owns 1800 acres of land fronting on the ocean.

The third Standard Oil project at this time is a redrill job in the town lot section of the field, lo-cated at Twentieth street and Ocean avenue. The casing in this well, which is producing from the 4800-foot zone, went mad and in order to replace the casing a re-drill job was necessary. This well as well as the Thomson well on the East Side is being drilled with electricity. The Standard is drill-

RANCHERS ASK FRUIT PATROL BE CONTINUED

Pointing to the value of the fruit patrol to ranchers of Orange county, a petition, signed by 12 growers, was presented to the board of supervisors yesterday, asking that the squad be contin-ued. The board did not act on the petition yesterday.

"We, the undersigned, have been advised that your honorable body has released the fruit patrol from further duties and has left our or-anges, avocados and other ranch products unprotected from petty thieves," said the petition.

"This is to advise you that we deem it necessary to place the fruit patrol back on duty that we may have the protection which heretofore has been effective."

Organization of the fruit patrol was put into effect at a time when prices of citrus fruit were un-usually high and thievery of a small amount of fruit might have re-sulted in a comparatively high fi-nancial loss.

Those signing the petition were O. P. Bunyard, F. Schadick, J. Dennis, M. M. Carpenter, Fred Hammond, W. L. Lanier, R. C. Guinday, J. W. Fuqua, M. E. In-skeep and John N. Anderson, of Cypress, and S. J. Scally and M. H. Shirley, of Anaheim.

H. B. Mayor, Wife Leave In August On European Trip

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 24.

PROVEN....

It has been a long time since I have had the pleasure of talking with my thousands of friends and customers through the medium of the newspaper.

The first six months of this year we were not able to supply more than 25% of the Six Cylinder Chevrolets we had orders for and scores were disappointed . . . we were naturally disappointed, too. This condition existed in spite of the fact that the factory made more cars each month than ever before and we received our proportion.

In 6 months and 8 days of this year Chevrolet made and sold at re-tail over 800,000 Six Cylinder Chevrolet cars and WITHOUT A SIN-GLE MECHANICAL CHANGE.

I want to tell you how it is possible to build an automobile in such large quantities and still reach so close to perfection and give such universal satisfaction.

In all, General Motors spent four years designing, testing, and per-fecting the Chevrolet Six . . . more than 50 engineers co-operated, checking and rechecking; dozens of expert mechanics and drivers, testing the cars, drove them over a million miles on the great Gen-eral Motors proving ground at Milford, Michigan.

This proving ground is a 1240-acre tract of land on which has been built every imaginable type of road; some smooth as our beautiful California roads used for speed work; others of sand, gravel, dirt, and deep chuck holes, steep hills. Every condition under which you as an owner would drive your car. In fact the Chevrolet Six has had more tests and more miles, than any owner would give it during his lifetime.

The result is, the Chevrolet Six is quiet, smooth and without rumble beyond belief, nimble and easy to handle, trouble proof and at a price that will astonish you. The best proof of all is the sat-isfaction they have given owners - - ask one or a dozen, they are the Judge and Jury and I know you will learn beyond the question of a doubt that the Chevrolet Six has been PROVEN the out-standing automobile of all time.

I just want you to drive this car and learn what tremendous strides modern manufacturers have made in automobile construction and at so low a price. A phone call will bring one to your door with NO OBLIGATION OR ANNOYANCE. I know you will marvel as thousands have before you.

star must have," Laemmle goes on to say. "Make-up is no help in the close-up. The skin must be exquisite."

Because smooth flawless skin is abso-lutely necessary for success in motion pictures, 442 of the 451 important Holly-wood actresses, including all stars, are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. And all the great film studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms.

Especially for the close-up, when the huge new incandescent "sun-spot" lights pour their terrific brilliance down on a star, the screen actress's skin must be smooth as satin.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap—they have found that this daintily fragrant white soap keeps their skin at its loveliest—as smooth as a flower petal.

STATE PICNICS ARE ANNOUNCED FOR SOUTHLAND

Hoosiers and Nebraskans are scheduled to assemble at picnic reunions next Saturday according to announcements received today. Both affairs are under the auspices of their respective state societies.

Former residents of the state of Indiana will have their picnic in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles, and the ex-Nebraskans are to gather in Bixby park, Long Beach. County registers and headquarters for both picnics will be open all day, according to the announcements, and basket picnic dinners will be enjoyed at noon.

Judge W. D. McConnell, Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, Burr McIntosh and Judge Charles J. Orblin are announced as speakers on the program for the Indiana picnic. A popular program of short addresses and community singing is planned for the Nebraska affair.

Other state picnics to take place in the near future are for former residents of New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada and Wyoming. A joint session has been planned for the first three states and will be held Wednesday, July 31, in Bixby park, Long Beach. Wyomingites are called to assemble Sunday, August 4, in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles, by Mrs. Susan Holbrook, secretary-treasurer, and William O. Owens, president.

Programs with speakers from each state have been outlined for these occasions.

CAMP OSCEOLA EDITOR TELLS OF BOYS' FUN

BY NORMAN HICKS
Editor Y. M. C. A. Camp Paper

Under the direction of T. P. McKee, boys' work director of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A., 65 boys have enjoyed the first week of their stay in the Y. camp, in the San Bernardino mountains. Plenty of fun, camp improvement periods, classes, chapel and Bible study make up a well rounded routine, into which the boys are entering with great vim.

Last Friday the boys hiked to Jinks lake, about 5 miles distant, to visit a Los Angeles "Y" camp and have a swim in the lake. At Camp Osceola opportunity is given for three swim periods a day as well as elementary and advanced swimming instruction in the outdoor pool. Other classes are given in Indian lore, birds and flowers photography, rope spinning and journalism. The latter class produces a daily camp paper, called the "Osceola Grumbler."

An indoor ball league has been formed and games are played every afternoon after the rest period. The daily cleanup and camp improvement periods are teaching the boys the value of co-operation and cheerful acceptance of responsibilities. Appetites are astonishingly good and the meals excellent. Nine hours of sleep are provided for and terminated promptly at 6 a. m. by the buglers. Setting up exercises, wash-up, dip, flag raising, morning watch, Bible study, chapel, breakfast, police camp, inspection, work period, class period and morning swim provided a busy morning's activities. The afternoons are free, except for a half-hour rest period after dinner.

During the afternoons the fellows play games, fish for trout in the nearby stream, or take short hikes.

Another supervised swim period is held at 5:15, the flag lowering ceremony is held preparatory to the evening meal.

At the close the mail is distributed. The camp fire meetings in the evening, with singing, stories, talks, the camp paper and prayers, perhaps are the most impressive part of camp life and are looked forward to by the boys.

After a short devotional service in each of the nine cabins, taps sound and everyone is asleep in a jiffy. An overnight hike up to the top of Grayback is planned for the more experienced hikers. Many are expected to gain the top of Sugar Loaf mountain, which overlooks the camp.

Eleven boys have been called to the "Order of the Rag," an organization of campers who have shown an outstandingly fine spirit, and others are expected to be honored soon. The chief regret seems to be that camp will be over so quickly, but many of the fellows will come back again next year to continue the good times of this year's camp.

PARTY NOVELTIES

A set of Florentine ash trays is a treasure for the woman who gives bridge parties. They are just heavy enough so that they are not easily brushed aside by a careless gesture, and they add to the decoration when the bridge sets are of Italian linen. The hostess who likes complete consistency might even have for her prizes a bambino or a Savonarola plaque for each table.

W. R. MARSHALL, SCHEDULED FOR S. A. TALK, DIES

William R. Marshall, president of the American Letter company, of Los Angeles, well known lecturer on business subjects, sales promotion, motion picture and author, who was scheduled to address the Santa Ana Lions club tomorrow and who had been signed up by several Santa Ana business firms for lecture courses for the benefit of their employees, dropped dead of heart disease on a golf course in Los Angeles late yesterday afternoon, according to information received here today.

Marshall, who organized the Los Angeles Optimist club and held the office of president of that organization for two years, was to address the Lions here tomorrow on the subject, "The Problem of the Age." He was playing golf with a group of friends when, according to the report made to the Los Angeles county coroner's office, he slumped to the ground. Death was practically instantaneous, it was discovered in the University hospital, Culver City, where he was rushed by his friends.

The business counselor and author, who was the creator of the Marshall Lecture course, which has as its aim the self-betterment of the subscriber, had been a resident of Los Angeles for 18 years.

Hawaii's World-Wide Hunt For Million Dollar Cloaks

The First King Kamehameha's Feather Cape Now Rests Securely in a Honolulu Museum, And Patriotic Islanders Are Carrying on Their Effort to Get More of These Almost Priceless War Robes of Old Pacific Royalty

Hawaii's George Washington, King Kamehameha I, sketched from life at the age of 80 in 1816. . . . The feather cape he wore in battle 200 years ago is now worth more than $1,000,000.

CENTURIES ago, when the rest of the world went to battle in iron clothing, the great seven-foot warriors of Hawaii donned gay war capes, fashioned of thousands of colorful feathers.

Today, the drab armor of the rest of the world is as plentiful and cheap as scrap iron, compared with these magnificent, flimsy things of red and green and yellow. For Hawaii has become conscious of these unique mementoes of its past and a million dollars in cash is said to be instantly available in Honolulu for the purpose of bringing home a single cape.

Interest in them has grown since the recent return to the islands of a gorgeous war cape originally worn by King Kamehameha I, who united the Hawaiian Islands under one government almost 200 years ago. It is a priceless treasure from the most heroic and exotic period of Hawaiian history. Most of the feathers in it are of birds long since extinct and it is said to be insured for more than $1,000,000.

Like the famous rugs of Persia, these feather capes were made by the most highly skilled artisans. Frequently two and even three generations of workers toiled to complete a single garment. And like the plaids of the Scotch clans, the intricate designs interwoven in them spelled the rank of the wearer. After King Kamehameha's reign this rank was determined by the degree of kinship the warrior could claim to him.

The principal colors used were red and yellow. The more yellow, the higher the rank of the wearer. The red feathers had certain significance as to rank and were used to make bizarre, geometrical pattern effects on the bright yellow background.

FEW but crossword puzzle fans will recognize the names of the birds most highly prized for this purpose. Among them were the Mamo, the Oo, Iiwi, Apapane and Ou, among the land birds, and the Iwa and Koae of the sea birds.

The Mamo was a black honey-eater with orange yellow feathers above and below the base of the tail. It was the rarest of all the birds that contributed to the making of these kingly cloaks. It was found only on one island, the largest of the group, Hawaii, and is believed to have been extinct since about 1870.

A commoner bird, and one that was found on several of the islands, was the Oo. It is still to be seen, though very rarely. It also was glossy black, with yellow feathers under each wing.

The Iiwi is still to be found on the islands, though it is also rare. It is scarlet, except for its black wings and tail. This bird furnished more feathers than any of the others because of the abundance of colored feathers it boasted as compared with its black ones.

Rarer than these, and almost as rare as the Mamo, is the Apapane. It attracted the feather workers because of its rich crimson plumage.

There were many birds with green plumage on the islands, but only a few capes are preserved in which these are used. Some capes have the satiny white feathers of the Koae. Even domestic fowls contributed their comparatively commonplace feathers to the capes of the chiefs of low rank.

The birds themselves as well as the use of their feathers were taboo to the commoners, and sacred to the kings and chiefs.

The first kings maintained a corps of trained "birdmen" who lived in the forests and hunted these lovely creatures. They learned to imitate the call of the mate and thus lure the birds close to their hiding place where they had previously "doctored" a flower particularly delectable to the bird they wished to catch by placing a sticky gum in the stamen of the blossom. Then they waited until the bird thrust its bill into the flower and was caught in the gum. Then the birdman carefully removed the desired feathers and freed the bird.

Old Hawaiians claim that the birds grew new feathers the next year and this accounts for the great size and number of capes, each one of which took thousands upon thousands of feathers. When guns came to the islands, however, with the coming of the traders, the old ways began to give way to the new and a pitiable slaughter of the birds began. Many species now are practically extinct as a result, and at least two species are absolutely extinct.

After removing the feathers, the bird hunters tied them in small bunches and delivered them to the people in the villages who made the strong and unbelievable fine network on which the feathers were mounted. A flexible, strong, fiber obtained from the olona shrub, which still grows in the many deep ravines of the islands, was worked by hand into thread for this purpose.

So firmly were the feathers secured to the fibers that even after hundreds of years the feathers will break, rather than pull, from their foundation. In the best cloaks, the feathers were fastened to the net in rows, extending from side to side, and laid on like shingles, one covering the base of the other.

The Hawaiians' chiefs and warriors were magnificently formed human beings, many of them seven feet tall. Spears and other equipment of war, and even the accoutrements of peace, prove that they were of tremendous height, and magnificent strength.

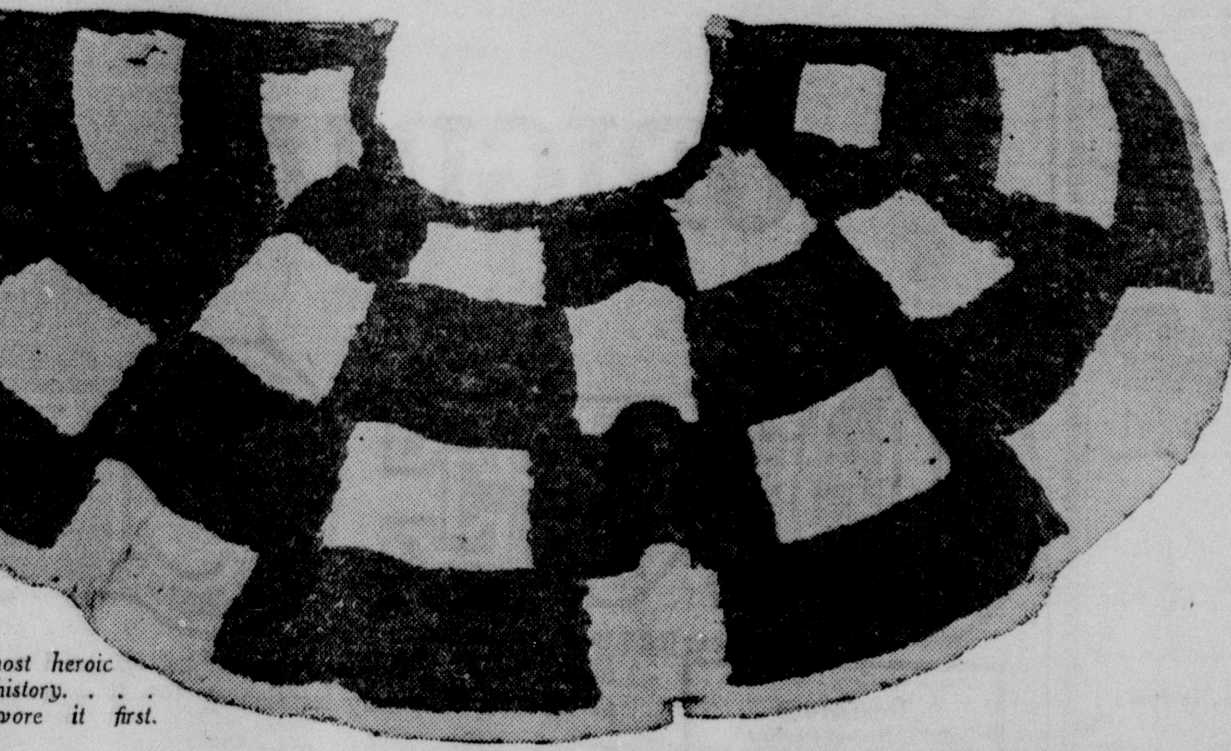

The fiber of the cloaks had a tendency to make them heavy though the feathers were, of course, very light. As a result, some of the capes weigh as much as 10 pounds. The average weight is about six.

One of the largest of the capes is known as the Joy cape, now at the Bishop Museum in Honolulu. It is 66 inches long in back and 156 inches along the lower edge. With these larger affairs was worn sometimes a smaller shoulder cape.

Feather helmets of great beauty were worn with these exotic garments and fashioned in the same manner as the cape—with feathers mounted on a fiber netted base. They followed in general outline the shape of the Roman helmet of the time of the Caesars.

IF ONE chief killed another in battle, it was the privilege of the conqueror to take the cape of the fallen one. In this way the great Kamehameha came into possession of the cape of Prince Kiwalao of Western Hawaii in the battle marking the first really significant victory of the great chief who was to unite all of the islands and their sundry petty chiefs under one consolidated government.

The capes first began to leave the islands about 1850 when explorers and traders and sea captains, who had won the favor of the king or chiefs, were given these priceless treasures as marks of special favor. In this way they were scattered all over the world, for Hawaii's early visitors were Portuguese, Spanish, Chinese, South American, Russian, English and American traders. Some of the garments have found their way to the museums of Europe and it is known that 120 have been thus preserved.

The romantic history of the cape recently returned to the territory and commonly known as the Starbuck cape, is typical of the history of most of these interesting examples of the art of an almost vanished race and civilization.

In 1823, Kamehameha II, son of Kamehameha I, who had worn this cape in battle, paid a visit to England at the invitation of King George IV. Accompanied by his beautiful Queen Kamehameha and his suite, the king embarked on the "L'Aigle," captained by a member of the famous Starbuck family and equipped in keeping with its mission.

On arrival in England, the court modiste took a hand in creating a wardrobe for the lovely Queen Kamehameha. And tailors, likewise, robed the visiting king.

As a mark of appreciation to Captain Starbuck, who had successfully brought them on such a long journey, the king presented him with the famous feather cloak.

Tragedy, however, followed triumphs of the royal couple at the English court, for they were both taken ill and died shortly before they were to embark for home. A British battleship brought the bodies around the Horn so that these two might rest with the other members of the royal family.

Another cape was the treasure of a Russian, captain and trader, and is said to have been given by him to a member of the ill-fated royal family of Russia. It was stolen on several occasions by vandals and the czarina, who prized the lovely garment dearly, summoned the resources of her great kingdom to recover it.

STILL others found their way to the museums of Berlin, Dresden, Paris, Geneva, London, Edinburgh, Dublin and Buenos Aires. Still another cape, also recently returned to the territory as the gift of one of Honolulu's most prominent capitalists, Walter F. Dillingham, was the cloak of Kamehameha III presented to Commodore Kearney of the United States navy in 1843 in appreciation of his heroic services to the then struggling kingdom.

The particular incident involved was the recognition of the Hawaiian flag by the United States through Kearney's efforts. This recognition occurred at the time Lord George Pailet endeavored to seize the islands as British territory and is, without question, one of the outstanding events in the chain of happenings responsible for the annexation of this valuable territory to the United States. At the time of the presentation of this cape, lineal descendants of Kamehameha III were among the interested participants in the ceremonies.

Sir Arthur Sloggett, surgeon-general of the British Expeditionary Forces during the World War, has presented, through a nephew who resides in the islands, the cape of Kamehameha IV, given to Sloggett's great grandfather by the monarch.

Scientists, collectors and curators of museums have all taken up the search for feather capes known to be still in possession of private families. Money to buy them, in order to bring them back to Hawaii, is not lacking. Sugar barons, bankers, professional men and all Hawaiians, as well as her many visitors who know the fascination and the glamour of Hawaii, are poking around in the odd corners of the world searching for capes or clews that will lead to them.

BEACH CHURCH MEETING SET FOR JULY 28

SEAL BEACH, July 24.—Next Sunday will be fourth quarterly conference day at the local church. Dr. A. J. Hughes, superintendent of the Long Beach district, will be in charge of the conference, which will be held at the close of the evening service. Dr. Hughes will preach at this service.

As a prelude to the evening service the junior choir will render two numbers. Jean Wheat, directed by Miss Elizabeth Snider, will give a reading and Mrs. Carrie Lou Sutherland will give a solo selection.

Two important items of business are to come before the conference, the question of changing the annual conference from a fall to a spring conference and the approval of the appointment of a lay delegate to the annual meeting, to be held in Long Beach, September 24. Mrs. Ward Pilley has been elected as a lay delegate from this church and Mrs. Carl O. Wheat as alternate.

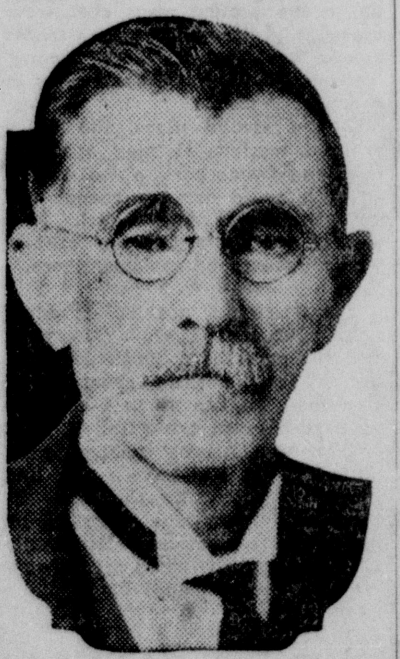

Weeds Of 422 Lots Destroyed

ANAHEIM, July 24.—Weeds on 422 lots in the city of Anaheim were destroyed during the past few weeks, according to a report of R. Nyboe, fire chief. The work was done both to remove fire hazard and as a means of beautifying the city. According to Nyboe the work was done at a cost of $132 per lot.

MORRISON NOW DISCUSSES HIS WIFE'S TROUBLE

Feels Like Going from House to House to Tell People About Sargon, He Says

"When two people, both of them seventy-five years old, like my wife and myself, find a medicine that does as much for us as the Sargon treatment did, we honestly feel like going from house to house and telling other sufferers about it."

J. F. MORRISON

"About a year and a half ago my wife's health began to fail, and finally she became so weak and run down that I had to spend most of my time waiting on her. Then she started the Sargon treatment, and now she is so well and strong and energetic that she doesn't need me or anybody else to wait on her."

"Why, I have seen the time when she suffered so after eating that I was nearly worried to death. It looked like nothing she ate agreed with her. She was bilious and headachy, and so nervous she dreaded to see night come on. We spent lots of money trying one medicine and another, but instead of getting better, she seemed to get weaker all the time. Then, I decided to try the Sargon treatment, and I have never seen such wonderful improvement. I tell you I was surely happy when she commenced to eat hearty meals again, without any more stomach trouble. It is just wonderful how peaceful her sleep is now. She gets up in the mornings rested and refreshed, and so energetic and vigorous that I hardly know her for the same person. She says she feels better than in years, and she certainly looks it."

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills helped my wife so much that I decided to take them for biliousness and constipation, and they are the best laxative I ever took."

The above statement was recently made by J. F. Morrison of 132 N. Banker Hill Ave., Los Angeles.

Sargon may be obtained in Santa Ana at the Schramm-Johnson drug store.—Adv.

HARBOR BALL PLAYERS FORM 4-TEAM LEAGUE

COSTA MESA, July 24.—A joint meeting of Mesa and Newport Beach ballplayers was held Tuesday evening at the Newport city hall to organize a new league and to adopt rules.

The new league will have four teams instead of six as at present. Teams and managers are as follows: Costa Mesa Merchants, George Healey; Costa Mesa Lumber, Spide Hostetter; Newport Lumber, Harry Rider; American Legion, Lester Wilkins. New league games will start August 15.

Monday evening at 8 o'clock a protested game will be played between the Newport Lumber and the Mesa Aggies. This will be one of the most interesting games of the season, for if the Newport Lumber team wins, it throws them into a tie with the Costa Mesa Lumber for first place, then a two out of three series will be played. If the Mesa Aggies win, the cup will automatically go to the Costa Mesa Lumber team.

A big game is scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock between the Costa Mesa Merchants and the Bell Telephone company team of Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Shaffer and daughter, Betty, with Mr. Shaffer's sister, Mrs. George Dush, and children, of Chicago, who is visiting here left for a visit at Catalina island. They will return the last of the week, when Mrs. Bush will leave for Chicago.

E. H. Peterkin went to Camp Ro-Ki-Li Tuesday taking a group of Scout boys up to camp and bringing back some who had been there several days.

Melvin Rankin spent the week-end in the home of his grandmother, Mrs. C. L. Rankin, in Los Angeles.

Harry Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weaver, returned home Monday morning bringing with him Mrs. Weaver, formerly Miss Helen Kelham, of Avila, Ind.

Mr. Weaver on a trip east two years ago met Miss Kelham and they have kept up their friendship that resulted in a wedding at the home of the bride's parents, July 15th.

ORGANIZATION OF DISTRICT FOR FIRE PROTECTION PLAN OF COSTA MESA RESIDENTS

COSTA MESA, July 24.—A meeting was called Tuesday evening to discuss the advisability of forming a fire district. After considering all costs and conditions, a motion was passed favoring the formation of a fire district. Petitions will be circulated soon to obtain the necessary signatures.

L. J. Robeson, of the Buena Park fire department, was present and cited the details necessary to form a fire district.

On account of the new insurance law becoming effective August 14, it is necessary that the fire equipment be adequately protected by insurance. A little more equipment is necessary to make the department efficient, it was stated. The proposed territory to be embraced is large enough to make the assessment very small, but is not too large to be well protected, it was declared.

It is estimated that a tax levy of 15 cents per $100 on the assessed valuation will be ample to meet all present requirements.

The proposed fire district, roughly speaking, radiates one mile in each direction from the post office, as follows: From the city limits of Newport, on Newport boulevard, east to Irvine street, north-east on Irvine street, north-east on Santa Ana street, north-east on Santa Ana street to the Santa Ana County club, northwest on Mesa drive to the railroad track, southwest along the railroad track to the Banning line, (660 feet north of Wilson street), south on Banning line to Meyers street, south on Meyers street to Nineteenth street, west on Nineteenth street to the western boundaries of the Newport Mesa Tract, around that tract on to the starting place.

The map may be seen in the C. J. Lewis market window.

LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, July 24.—Miss Eleanor May Spencer attended the concert at Hollywood bowl recently.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Peters and family are spending their vacation at Arch Beach. They are from Los Angeles.

Luella Marshall, Graeme Smith and George Griffith have returned from Coronado, where they took the Red Cross course in first aid and life saving.

Capt. and Mrs. W. D. Brotherton entertained Lieut. and Mrs. E. C. Ashley of March field in their home on Coast boulevard Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haskins and their children, Maud and Richard, occupied their cottage here over the week-end.

Dr. Virginia J. Ellis, of Los Angeles, spent four days in Laguna Beach visiting her sister and nephew, Mrs. Fern Burford and Leon Burford. She left Monday for Los Angeles.

Miss Mary Lee Lambert spent a week in Laguna Beach visiting her cousin, Clara Louise Lambert, on Cross street, returning home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Champion Jr., has returned from a trip to the Canadian Rockies, where they visited Lake Louise, Banff and other places. They visited the parents of the former, Mayor and Mrs. Frank B. Champion Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Rankin went to Los Angeles Monday to make arrangements for their son, Victor, entering the state university in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barle are visiting the latter's mother, Mrs. Frank Case, who lives on Coast boulevard near Boat canyon.

Mrs. Franklin Knight and party, who have been occupying the Shaw cottage on Gleneyre street, left Monday for Long Beach.

Mrs. Clema Woods is recovering from the injury received when she slipped on a polished floor in her home and fell, breaking her hip. She will be confined to her bed for several months, the attending physician says.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison Crowe and the latter's sister, Mrs. Trueman, spent Sunday at their cottage on Diamond street.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Chambers have been having as house guests, Mrs. Chambers' mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Keeney, of Blythe, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo V. Keeney, of Prescott, Ariz. The party will remain for the rest of the week and then go to Newport Beach. L. V. Keeney is a brother of Mrs. Chambers, and Mrs. Keeney was principal of a Prescott school.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham and son, Alvin Graham, and Mrs. Graham's aunt, Mrs. Mary Orr, and cousin, Miss Lorraine Orr, motored to San Diego Wednesday to remain over Thursday.

The same party over Thursday took a motor trip Sunday through Turnpike canyon and returning by way of North Whittier Heights, visited in the home of Mr. Graham's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shonle entertained as a guest Sunday, Mrs. Shonle's brother, Mr. Seagers, of Redondo, who came for his son, Albert Seagers, who had been visiting in the Shonle home.

Another son, Earl Seagers, who accompanied him here, is remaining for a visit with his uncle and aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Houser and family spent Sunday in Venice with Mrs. Houser's brother, Richard Nankervis, and family, who are summing there.

FARROW'S HOMER BEATS S. A. IN 11TH Sampson, Rivers Battle To Six-Round Draw

BERT FINISHES FAST TO BREAK EVEN AT ARENA

Shading his swarthy opponent in the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds by virtue of feverish activity at close range, rugged Bert Sampson, Los Angeles welterweight, came from behind in time to earn a draw with Indian Jimmie Rivers, Fullerton, in six laps at the Orange County Athletic club here last night.

The show grossed well enough considering the Santa Ana-Long Beach baseball game which took most of the city's sporting population out of town.

Rivers took the first and third rounds and Sampson the last three with the second chapter even. However, Rivers' edge in the first and third was greater than Sampson's in the fourth, fifth and sixth, making Referee Billy Darnley's verdict a just one.

Rivers Starts Fast

Jimmie started out like he was going to completely reverse the result of his first meeting with Sampson, in which the Angeleno piled up enough points at in-fighting to receive a popular decision. Smothering Bert with a flurry of rights and lefts, Rivers went to his corner after the first round with a comfortable lead. He landed his heaviest and cleanest punches in this frame, and Sampson was weary at the bell. Jimmie's long swinging left and his counter punches did not bother Sampson so much in the second, which was approximately even-stepped, but Rivers forced the going again in the third and was well ahead of his sturdy antagonist going into the fourth.

From there on, however, Rivers made the grave mistake of meeting Bert halfway. With something to go on, he would have done well to have boxed Sampson for Bert is no great shuck of a fighter unless he can get in close. But Sampson took the play away from him, leveled for the body and when he got in the clinches was entirely too strong for the Fullerton fellow, keeping Jim's head bobbing back and forth, up and down through the rest of the blood-lesse encounter.

Match Punches in Sixth

Rivers came out of his corner determined to make a characteristic whirlwind finish in the last round but Bert matched punches with him and continued to outscore him at close quarters, although the round was close.

Rivers fought a much more open fight than Sampson who did most of the pushing and clinching, and twice actually shoved Jimmie through the ropes into the laps of rinsiders.

Showing the effects of an extended layoff, Jesse Ayala, aggressive little Anaheim welter, took an artistic boxing lesson and lacing from Al Nelson, of Long Beach, Nelson winning every round and the decision after six rounds. Jesse seemed absolutely unable to defend himself against Nelson's versatile attack, which was well divided between the head and body.

Macias Kayoes Butler

"Wild Man" Macias stopped Art Butler in the first round. Butler appeared stupefied when he saw the "Wild Man" swing and made no effort to evade the sleeping tablet.

Kid Lucas and Billy Cain stole the show with four rounds of blood and thunder after which Cain got the decision. Lucas was in the slug in the first and was outpointed in every round but he was game to the core and kept after the more experienced.

Resume City League Ball Race Tonight

After a stormy evening in Long Beach, Santa Ana night baseball fans will settle down to the placid task of watching City leaguers perform in the Bowl here tonight.

Twenty-four hours after having opposed the Long Beach Acorns, Joe Ochoa, crack local pitcher, will "go to the well" again tonight, toiling for the Kinslow Machine shop against the Barr Lumber company.

Tomorrow night, the El Corral Cowboys will gallop into the Bowl against the Hawley Sportsmen.

Santa Ana and Anaheim play a County league fray here Friday and Long Beach and Santa Ana clash here Monday.

WALSH ADVISES YOUNG LOTT TO HARDEN HEART

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 24.—"Harden your heart," the Negro caddy advised the golfer who was playing neither wisely nor too well and, if I was the United States Lawn Tennis association—and for all you know, I'm nothing of the kind—I would sit myself down today and cable his message verbatim to George M. Lott, Jr.

This young man is only 22, not yet out of college and his international experience is at a minimum; yet, two days hence, he will be asked to go into the challenge round of the Davis cup series with France and proceed to impersonate something he never pretended to be, namely, a world's champion.

He's On the Spot

The Davis cup committee put on the chill for Lott last year when it decided the identity of those who were to go forth and lose magnificently to the French. This time, it was found a better means of expression. It has "put him on the spot," so to speak. There can be no doubt that the play America makes for the cup this year will rise or fall with the performance of George M. Lott, Jr., and only a world's champion can guarantee to beat either Cochet or Borotra in the singles.

Tilden may beat one of them, never both. The doubles team of Allison and Van Ryn looks as though it can put the bowser on the French in Saturday's match. So, if we are to take title to the cup again, Lott must deliver one match in two attempts. If Lacoste goes so far as to buy Mr. Lott's chances for a wall motto, But Lacoste isn't and, therefore, Mr. Lott is a young man of possibilities.

He has the tennis. All he needs beyond that is to "harden his heart." It usually takes the cold, self-will of maturity to achieve this attitude in a competitor and the spirit of youth still is uppermost in Lott.

Like Dick Williams

He is prone alike to spasms of error and flights of sheer genius, much after the manner of Dick Williams, who never grew up. The brilliant steadiness that was Tilden, Brooks and Wilding of the old school and Cochet of the new, has been denied Lott so far. The iron hasn't entered his soul.

He is in that stage of development that claimed Helen Willis.

A conceded better player, she couldn't beat Mrs. Mallory. Bobby Jones went through the same ordeal before 1923. Tilden, as I remember him in the early days around Philadelphia, was just a good club player. He, too, had to burn resolution into himself in the fire of competition. Even Mister Tunney discovered that his natural perfection wasn't enough. A kindly man at heart, he just hated to be so firm. But he was—with everybody.

Lott will have to be very firm with everybody on Friday or his great change must end only in failure. He must harden his heart. The iron must be in his soul, meaning his inner self. Otherwise, he is likely to find that the iron is in his sole, nearing his shoes.

KLEIN, TODAY'S HERO, WAS $200 PALOOKA

A battle for home run leadership in the National league is being staged by two youngsters who were regarded as rookies when the teams went south last spring—"Chuck" Klein of the Phils and Melvin Ott of the Giants. The two are shown below as they appeared together during the recent series between the two teams, with Klein at the left. Below is a closeup of Klein and he is also pictured taking a cut at the ball at the right.

JACKIE FIELDS MEETS DUNDEE FRIDAY NIGHT

BY WM. M. BRAUCHER
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

Cheer up, fellows, as Gene Tunney might say, you may be a palooka today and a protagonist tomorrow. As we write this we are thinking about a young man named Charles ("Chuck") Klein.

Klein is at present doing a highly diverting act with a baseball bat for some obscure baseball club called the Phils. For many years the Philadelphia National league baseball club appears to have been lost track of, and Mr. Klein is just doing a little stumping to recall to the citizenry that there is a Philadelphia National league ball team after all.

Played With Evansville

Two years ago Charley Klein was playing baseball with Evansville in the Three Eye league and he didn't have to have the bat boy shovel away the flowers from the plate every time he came to bat either.

He was regarded so highly by the astute Evansville management that he was sold at the close of a bad season for $200 to Fort Wayne in the Central league. That was a $98,800 mistake by the Evansville people and helps one to realize how Evansville, with Klein playing every day, could be a tail-end ball club that year.

Last spring Klein was taken along by the kindly Mr. Shotton of the Phils. But if you had asked Bert then about Klein he would have given you both ears full of chatter about another outfielder named Homer Peel. At any rate, Klein wasn't regarded as a prospect for the regular lineup of the Philadelphia National league team, and when you're not that, your case can be dismissed for lack of evidence.

These "Nice Players"

When managers are asked about prospects such as Klein appeared to be last spring, they have a way of telling you they are "nice ball players" and asking you where you got that hot necktie.

Klein, the $200 slugger from Evansville, in plain words, didn't look so hot this spring.

Today he stands out among the National league sluggers as mightiest of all, having passed Melvin Ott the other day by smashing three homers in three successive times at bat and sending Al Muro to Elias scurrying for his record books. Mr. Elias came up with the information that this was indeed a new record, the nearest approach being Elmer Smith's three homers for the Indians in 1921, but with a base on balls between them.

While a Tris Speaker doesn't have to be a Tris Speaker to cover the under-sized right field in the bandbox in which the Philadelphia teams entertain at home, Klein has been demonstrating fair enough agility in pursuing that old rabbit ball about the meadow.

Klein has youth, and about seven or eight players of his type are what Boss Burt Shotton has been praying for. The clugging of the $200 boy from Evansville may lead the way toward a new and brighter day for the Philandering Phils.

SONNENBERG'S MAT TITLE AT STAKE TONIGHT

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—(INS)

Conceded little better than an even chance by bettors "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, present titleholder will wrestle to a finish with Joe Malcewicz, Utica, N. Y., mat "panther" at the Olympic here tonight.

Sonnenberg's odds were based on his singular record during his 13 months of grappling, six of which he has held the title. His style of "billy-goat" butting and flying tackle also tip the scales in his favor.

On the other hand Malcewicz is conceded the most scientific grappled in the business by sports critics. With phantom swiftness and a series of slam holds that seem as effective as "Strangler" Lewis' headlocks, Malcewicz has built up his own little camp of backers who have no doubt as to the outcome of tonight's match.

Weighing Malcewicz's coolness and calculating against Sonnenberg's wildest bust 'em up tactics, learned on the Dartmouth grid, the scales show but little difference between the mat-men. Both are in the best of condition; both are confident of success and brains and muscle will decide the question.

Umpires Differ

Umpire Smith agreed that the ball should have been only scored as a single, leaving the bases full and one out. Jenkins, who was calling balls and strikes, contended that any ball hit out of the park was a legitimate home run regardless of ground rules. The players milled about the field for 30 minutes, arguing the play while the crowd, uncertain, waited to see what was what.

Horace Snow, field captain of the local club, protested the decision but later notified the officials that Santa Ana, "for the good of the sport" would not carry the protest to the league's high tribunal.

Usually a slow starter, Santa Ana got the jump on the Acorns and at one time enjoyed a 3 to 0 lead. With both sides always threatening, the Stars broke

LONG BEACH LEADS COUNTY LEAGUE PENNANT CHASE AS STARS ARE DEFEATED, 6-4

"Butch" Farrow—a name to conjure with. "Butch" is simply poison to Santa Ana. The squat Acorn catcher temporarily eclipsed the Stars' aspirations again last night when he hit a home run, with two on base, over the right field fence at Long Beach and beat the Southern California champions, 6 to 4, in 11 innings of roughhouse baseball. The contest ended amidst the wildest confusion, with the crowd, the players and even the two umpires divided in opinion as to whether Farrow's tremendous drive should have been counted a home run, or merely a single on account of the ground rules which were necessary because of the overflow crowd which completely skirted the outfield of the Long Beach pillbox park.

It was the second time this season that the fat Farrow, single-handed, defeated Santa Ana with a home run. His four-base swat gave the Acorns the winning run of a 2 to 1 contest in the Bowl June 11, the first time the old rivals met in conference competition.

A Bit of Drama

The "Butcher" had a more theatrical setting for his blast this time. Santa Ana had made what appeared to be a winning run in its half of the eleventh. The score was 4 to 3. Joe Ochoa, who replaced a wobbling Glenn Stockbridge in the fifth, got two strikes on Neal, the first Acorn batsman, and then threw him four straight balls for a pass. Kohler bounded to Hill at shortstop and all hands were safe when Cole dropped Hill's throw to first base. Maylin, attempting to sacrifice, popped to Ochoa. That put it up to Farrow—two on and one out.

What happened next gave Santa Ana a headache, Long Beach the ball game as well as undisputed possession of first place in the Orange County Night Baseball league and Umpires Bill Jenkins and "Shorty" Smith a half-hour of heated argument.

Farrow shot a line drive over the right field fence, the ball clearing the barrier by four feet. Nobody ever had hit a ball out of that park before. Neal and Kohler preceded the joyous Farrow around the pathways. And then came the deluge. Santa Ana protested vehemently that the ground rules, agreed to before the game, stipulated that any ball hit to the right of a certain sign in right center would be scored a single on account of the crowd which made fielding a ball in that vicinity a physical impossibility.

Umpires Differ

Umpire Smith agreed that the ball should have been only scored as a single, leaving the bases full and one out. Jenkins, who was calling balls and strikes, contended that any ball hit out of the park was a legitimate home run regardless of ground rules. The players milled about the field for 30 minutes, arguing the play while the crowd, uncertain, waited to see what was what.

PIPING 'EM OFF

Long Beach slipped into first place in the Orange County league by defeating Santa Ana last night. The Acorns are half a game ahead, which, in reality, amounts to one full game as they have played one less contest than the Stars.

The standings follow:

ORANGE COUNTY NIGHT LEAGUE

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Long Beach	10	2	.833
Santa Ana	10	3	.769
Anaheim	8	5	.615
Olive	5	7	.417
Garden Grove	5	8	.385
Huntington Beach	4	10	.286
Orange	2	9	.250

Last Night's Results

Long Beach 6, Santa Ana 4 (11 innings).

Friday's Games

Anaheim at Santa Ana.

Olive at Huntington Beach.

Orange at Garden Grove.

There will be no protest over the Long Beach tussle, Horace Snow, Santa Ana captain, said today. First and foremost, the Stars do not care to be involved in a protest although almost everybody in the park agreed that they had reasons for an argument when Umpire Bill Jenkins allowed Farrow's homer. The big catcher hit a home run well enough but if the umpires did not intend to live up to the ground rules that were thoroughly discussed by both teams before the contest there seemed little use of having ground rules in the first place.

In the second place, the Stars are not anxious to play again in the Long Beach park which was so small it could not even accommodate the Santa Ana crowd. If a protest were granted the contest would have to be replayed there.

The Stars did not like it when Long Beach refused "Memphy" Hill the right of a substitute runner after the little shortstopper was badly shaken up in a collision at first base in the fifth. "Butch" Farrow, the Acorns' field captain, agreed to let Hill have a rest and return to the game the next inning but Farrow was overruled by his teammates who said Hill would have to leave the game permanently if he were replaced by a "pinch runner."

Wayne Nelson was one of the real stars for the Stars. He pulled down two hard line drives that were well kissed and climaxed a big night by dashing pell-mell into the crowd in left field to stab

HOOKS AND SLIDES

Henry L. Farrell

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

The Cincinnati Reds got an order from Chicago for five box seats right behind the Red bench for the Reds-Cub series. . . . And the Reds ordered extra police. . . .

"Hack" Wilson, who started it all, was presented with a pair of boxing gloves in New York by Jack Fugazy, the prize fight promoter. . . .

Burt Shotton has signed a contract to manage the Phillies for three years after this one. . . . And the boys don't know whether to milt him or cry on his shoulder. . . .

A young sports writer took a healthy wallop at a major league umpire recently. . . . And the umpire commented. . . .

"That guy! He's just a college chump keeping a man out of a job." . . . They say Jack Quinn is the fellow who made all those Philadelphia pitchers so good. . . .

And they say that McGraw is seriously disappointed with the failure of Ray Schalk to make him a lot of swell pitchers. . . .

THE START OF A STORM

This innocent little department started something sometime back when it suggested that Jack Hendricks should not be held responsible because the Cincinnati Reds were not up around the top. It was pointed out at the time that Mr. Hendricks hasn't so many swell ball players.

Letters have been pouring in since then from fans, condemning and defending the Cincinnati manager.

One letter which was printed in the column mentioned Pee Wee Wanninger as a player who has been abused by Hendricks.

NOT MUCH OF A HITTER

Then came another letter in argument in which the wise crack was pulled that Wanninger wasn't near the shortstop that Ford is and that he couldn't hit a bull with a bass fiddle.

Another letter from a writer who has no sympathy for the Hendricks regime said if he owned the Reds he would trade Hendricks for a horse and then give him the horse to ride home on.

NEITHER DOES CONNIE MACK

Much of the complaint against Hendricks, as indicated by the letters, is based upon the opinion that he is disinterested in his team and never appears on the field. And that he has traded away all his good ball players.

It has been years since John McGraw appeared on the field and he has disposed of more good young ball players than any manager in the business.

McGraw did emerge from the dugout recently and was bounced out of the park for what he said to the umpire.

JACK SAYS MEAN WORDS

Hendricks also spoke up a few days ago and he was bounced by Umpire McLaughlin. He made his exit by way of the press box and as he exited he told the umpire: "You're not fit to umpire in the American association, you fat head."

THEY AIN'T SO BAD

Presenting some facts, without comment, Mr. Tom Swope, sports editor of the Cincinnati Post says:

"The Reds of 1927 won 28 and lost 49 the first half of the season and then won 75 and lost 73 on the year. They were farther from fifth place at the half way mark than the present team."

TUESDAY NIGHT IS FIGHT NITE! IN SANTA ANA.

YALE OKUN KAYOES DANIELS IN FOURTH

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—Yale Okun, New York heavyweight called on the asset of experience last night to defeat Dick Daniels, a young fighter from Minneapolis for the second time within a month.

The end this time came even quicker than that of the first engagement when Dick's seconds threw in the towel at the end of the fourth round. This time the white signal of peace came floating down the resin as Daniels wobbled to his corner at the conclusion of the third stanza.

Daniels was badly punished by the crafty Okun, who concentrated upon the injured mouth of the youngster. Daniels was down three times in the final round after lefts to the face.

Loughran Has Not Quit Throne Yet

NEW YORK, July 24.—Tommy Loughran still rules the light heavyweight kingdom. This was the word passed out to George Courney, of Oklahoma; Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, O.; and Maxey Rosenbloom, of New York, who called at the offices of the New York state athletic commission yesterday to lay claim to the title reported vacated by the champion.

through on Bobby Dalton in the third inning for two runs. Wilcox walked, and sprinted all the way to third when Stockbridge sacrificed, Morning to Noel. Schuchardt fled to center and Wilcox scored after the catch. Hill then walked, stole second and scored when "Rosey" Merrill dropped a double into left field.

That was enough for Dalton and Howard Morning. Long Beach's great southpaw, entered the arena at the beginning of the fourth. Both sides went scoreless through the fourth but Santa Ana picked up a third run in the fifth. With one away, Stockbridge was safe on Maylin's error. Schuchardt hit a line drive at First Baseman Noel, who knocked the ball down and then tagged Stockbridge between a first and second but Schuchardt beat Noel back to the bag. Schuchardt stole and scored all the way from second while "Memphis" Hill was beating out a bunt.

Stockbridge, who had been saved considerable embarrassment in the earlier innings by some strong support, was knocked out of the box in the fifth although a questionable decision at first base got him into all the trouble.

Stockbridge started the inning by walking Morning, who was almost immediately doubled off first base when the half-crippled Hill pulled down Noel's torrid liner and threw to Cole in time to nip Morning, who had started headlong for second. Kohler singled. Wilcox's snap throw to Cole trapped Kohler a foot off the bag but Umpire Smith ruled that Cole blocked Kohler which, he said, was against the rules.

Maylin then singled and Farrow was purposely passed, filling the bases. Ballard's infield single scored Kohler and Ochoa was rushed to the mound. Noel greeted him with a single to right that scored Maylin. Maness, who collected four singles during the evening, beat out an infield bouncer to Hill, Farrow going home with the tying run. Olson forced Maness at second for the third out and the score was 3 to 3, and thus it remained until the great blowout in the eleventh.

Santa Ana at this point apparently won the game. Nelson, who played a sensational game in left field, singled, went to second on Wilcox's sacrifice, to third on Ochoa's infield out and raced home when Orv Schuchardt dropped a Texas leaguer back of first base. Schuchardt himself almost scored with a daring bit of baserunning. Maylin's throw to get the Star out of the foot and bounded into center field and Schuchardt attempted to proceed home but Ballard's accurate relay to the plate nipped Schuchardt by a whisker.

The rest was all Long Beach and Farrow.

Noel's long fly in the tenth. He also hit safely twice.

"Big Bill" Cole was gunning today for a thief, a big thief in more ways than one. During the game some foul miscreant entered the Santa Ana dressing rooms and stole away with the trousers (size about 56) to "Big Bill's" brand new suit. Bill is a mere strapping of 225 pounds and he wonders how big the thief was. The husky first baseman had to wear his baseball pants home.

The rival managers made good their threat of strategy by starting their second string pitchers and finishing with their aces. Dalton was in there for Long Beach and Stockbridge for Santa Ana when it started.

Umpire Jenkins was in hot water all night. Players of both teams thought he was guessing 'em all wrong. "Shorty" Smith also had his troubles, particularly when he called Kohler safe at first base when Cole blocked him off the bag in the fatal fifth. Kohler was trapped off the bag a foot and Smith admitted it but he said the rules prohibit blocking a runner off a bag.

The tickets are going fast for the Santa Ana-Anaheim struggle here Friday. They are on sale at the El Corral service station and Baker's bakery. Tickets for next Monday night's Santa Ana-Long Beach fray will be available at the same places Saturday morning.

CUBS CONFIDENT OF WINNING AT HOME

CHICAGO, July 24.—Off to a successful start on a 17-game home stay, which they believe will take them out in front in the National league race, the Chicago Cubs were in their most jubilant mood of the year today.

Coming home from a long Eastern trip only one and one-half games behind the league leading Pirates, the Cubs pointed out that "We've got the smoothest functioning machine we've had all year and they'll never be able to stop us now."

The return to Hal Carlson to winning form, after two years of inconsistent work, was hailed with glee. More optimism was registered when "Sheriff" Fred Blake finally shook off the "one bad inning" jinx during the Eastern trip. Both these pitchers have won their last three games.

'Red' Grange Will Turn Movie Actor

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—"Red" Grange, former Illinois football star, arrived here yesterday with his father, and announced he will make "some sort of a college picture" for Universal, starting next month.

"Red's" last movie venture was four years ago in "One Minute to Play." He is now under a five-year optional contract, he says, and is looking to be a made man if his picture is a success. He and his father expect to build here, but he will return to Chicago in the fall to play professional football with the Bears.

side of the situation it is surprising to hear that Dan Howley is not giving satisfaction to the owners of the St. Louis Browns.

It is difficult to imagine how much more could be expected of Howley. He (or some one certainly has done wonders with an ordinary ball club.

They say that Phil Ball went out on his own judgment and bought the ball club that did so well last year and that Bill Killifer made the pitchers.

Ball, it is understood, is insisting upon being the manager of the club and Howley resents it.

Big league games often used to be played with one or two balls, but in a recent game in New York, seven dozen were used.

IT'S WORTH MONEY HERE!
You're carrying it as a spare . . . because it isn't good enough to ride on! And what's going to happen if you have to change to this . . . only to have it blow out on you a mile or so up the road? No, sir, if it isn't good enough to ride on, better get rid of it!

DARK night. Lonely road. Somewhere far ahead there's a gay party that isn't waiting for them. And here they are . . . stalled with a flat! It was so unnecessary.

What's the use of taking a chance on tires that are beginning to show wear? Of trying to eke out the last hundred miles or so? Instead . . . bring your car around to our store and let us trade in that old rubber. Off comes the old tire . . . on goes a new Silvertown! All in five minutes!

And instead of causing trouble at an inconvenient moment, your old, worn tires pay part of the price of new, sound Silvertowns with months and months of good service built in them!

For we will take your old tires in as part payment on new Silvertowns or Silvertowns De Luxe. We have outlets through which we dispose of worn rubber. We simply credit you with a fair allowance and you get new tires at decided savings.

And good tires, too . . . Goodrich Silvertowns, holders of performance records the country over. Just like those on the Silver Fleet. Dependable and sturdy, giving mileage and service that have made them standards of tire value everywhere.

See us today. Remember . . . there's no fun in the sort of blow-outs tires put on. Get rid of tires that are planning such affairs . . . and ride in security and peace of mind with sound new Goodrich casings all around!

CHAPTER XXI

Vilak heard a rustle in the brush behind which left no doubt that the officer had told the truth. Coolly he flicked open his cigarette case. "A cigarette, amigos?"

The other eyed him warily. "I do not smoke, amigos, when I have work to do."

Vilak lit his own casually. "That is foolish. A cigarette and the work is well begun, two cigarettes and the work is done. It is an old saying of the philosopher d'Almaro which you, a good Portuguese, should know, amigos. May I take to myself the privilege of troubling you to ask why your good soldiers have done us the honor of so escorting us?"

The other scowled. "Enough of this rigolade, enough of this folly," he muttered harshly. "You are all my prisoners until I see fit to release you, I will begin by asking you some questions. Take care that you answer them well and truthfully, or it will be the worse for you. What is your name? Your profession?"

"Sherman Davis, attorney."

"Nationality?"

"United States."

The officer laughed raucously. "You are droll, amigos, very, very droll." He leered as he looked at the boy, singular face with its slanted eyes which even Vilak's skillful make-up could not completely efface. "I have seen many who come from this great country in the north, but never any who have looked like you."

He turned on a winked at a cadaverous soldier with corporal's stripes, who had been riding beside him. "What do you say, Jesu, of this man who calls himself an American? Is he not rather a perfect Argentine?"

"Assuredly, mon capitain. Were he to walk into Buenos Aires, fifty children would run to call him father."

The officer pointed to the chemist. "And this one. Who is he," he demanded.

The old man looked at his questioner nervously. "Er—Nunnally," he stammered. "Lincoln Nunnally. Er, chemist, yes, chemist."

"Nationality?"

"Er, United States, New Jersey." The officer chuckled. "You hear him, Jesu? You hear him? Is he not indeed more droll than the first? This bald rabbit, this tiny insect who hops in the grass, tells us he comes from the United States where no man is less than six feet in height, where they kill all men who have not this height. Is not this droll one also a perfect Argentine, Jesu?"

"Assuredly, mon capitain. In Buenos Aires, there are a thousand in each street who would call him brother."

The officer grinned at Elise. "And this third one?" he murmured. "This lovely señorita with the black eyes which flame with anger and the cheeks that glow like the olive when it ripens in the sun. Who is she?"

Elise started to make an indignant reply. Vilak checked her. "Don't lose your temper. It'll make matters worse. We've got no chance here. They'll shoot us down if we give them the slightest excuse."

She obeyed her cousin's injunction and silent, coolly returned the officer's stare.

"Put down another Argentine, Jesu," he chuckled. "A beautiful one this time. There are not many like her in that misbegotten country. Yes, a perfect Argentine." He stared at the fourth messenger who had brought them from Porto Verde. "This one is nothing but a jackal who comes after the lions for the moldy bones they throw him. Let him go."

The half-breed scampered off down the road.

Vilak coolly tapped the end of his cigarette against the pommel of his saddle. "May I again have the privilege of inquiring why you have conferred upon us the honor of surrounding us on the road? Please, enough, amigos, for the society of you and your men is a boon for which we could all wish. But at the moment it hinders us slightly, for we would be on our way. What do you want with us?"

The officer put his hands to his sides and laughed with hysterical glee. "Jesu," he said, after the outburst was over, "you hear him? Is he not the king of actors, the king of kings of comedians? He does not know why we have stopped."

"He does not know! That is indeed droll!" roared Jesu. This five other men echoed his words, and burst into convulsive merriment.

The laughter became so loud that it irritated the mustached officer. He heaved himself haughtily in his saddle. "Enough!" he shouted. The pandemonium ceased at once. He wheeled around to Vilak. "You pretend not to know why my men have stopped you," he said. "Good. I will tell you. Then you can no longer say that you do not know. Last night on the fazenda, Colonel Miguel Bonjardos, who had the fazenda from his father who had it from his father's father, went to sleep. It was his last sleep, for this morning, when the servants came to wake him, they found he had been killed as he lay in his bed. Killed with a pistol. All his thousands of reals were gone."

"Three persons were seen coming there in the night. Two men, one tall like yourself, the other short and old like your companion. Both English. With them was a woman. They could not see the woman well, but she was dark, Spanish, they said. They were seen by two servants who have described them well. They tell us the soldiers, for he was our commander, they will also tell the gendarmes. We go out to search. We see you. There can be no doubt. You are like the man and the woman the servants have seen as coffee bean is like coffee bean and palm leaf like palm leaf. We will take you to the jail where we will hold an inquiry, and if you are indeed those whom I know you are, you will be made to tell where you have hidden the money, and then you will be shot. For we will waste no time with those who have slain our beloved commander. The law courts are too long. Now do not say that you do not know." He twisted his mustache so that the two ends looked like miniature horns.

Elise's hand, holding the bride, quivered with repressed emotion. "This is preposterous. Absolutely preposterous," she said as she leaned forward and indignantly confronted their accuser. "How could we have been here last night? All of us were on my fazenda. You are strangers here, that's why you're doing this. Go onto Villapa or Porto Verde, and ask who I am. Everyone knows me about here."

The officer spat between his teeth at a purplish lizard sleeping on a stone. "All who are taken by the law say they are innocent. If we took only those who said they were guilty, we should take no one."

"Somebody will pay for this stupidity," he went on doggedly. "I warn you. I hate to get anyone into trouble, but I'll certainly telegraph to Rio the first chance I get. The idea of soldiers doing this, of government soldiers. It's inconceivable!"

The officer turned his back on her and walked over to speak to one of the men who had come forward from the bush. Vilak touched her arm. "Be calm, Elise," he whispered. "Whatever you do, don't get excited, you're only wasting your breath. These men aren't soldiers at all. They're degenerate types of the South American soldiers of fortune, insurgents, who just go around the country waiting for a local revolution to break out which will give them a chance to do some looting. A lot of them are the worst sort of criminals."

"This whole thing is a frame-up. An absolute frame-up. I doubt if there's been a hint of either a theft or a murder. These men have been bought body and soul. Can't you see that? This is the work of some of our friends at Porto Verde. What I feared has happened. That message from Villapa was a trick and the man who brought it probably never saw your fazenda there. We have walked blindly into a trap."

In the next chapter the three travelers, Elise, Vilak and Nunnally are placed on trial for their lives.

Man Held On Waitress Charge Has Long Jail Record

TAKEN TO L. A. ON SUSPICION OF KIDNAPING

Earl V. Allen, 35, arrested as he stepped off a Pacific Electric car here early yesterday morning after Mrs. Mabel Patterson, waitress, of Lynwood, had complained that he had locked her in a rooming house in Los Angeles and kept her there against her will for two days, was taken to Los Angeles last night.

Allen is being held on suspicion of kidnaping, but no actual charge has been lodged against him, it was said.

The case has been turned over to Los Angeles authorities, for if any crime was committed it was committed in Los Angeles county, officers here explained.

Los Angeles police, who took Allen to that city, were equipped with his police record when they arrived here. There were 28 entries on the record and it showed that Allen had been in three state prisons.

He was sent to San Quentin for robbery in 1914, to Folsom on a robbery charge in 1918, when he was given one year to life, and to the Arizona state prison in 1923 for from eight to 16 years. Each time he was paroled before his sentence was completed, the record showed.

Mrs. Patterson, who returned to Lynwood after her experience, was told by officers to complain to the Los Angeles district attorney's office.

She said she escaped from the hotel, where Allen is said to have held her, and boarded a train for Lynwood. She noticed that the man was following her, she said, and was afraid to get off at her home town, so rode into Santa Ana. In the meantime she told the conductor on the train her troubles and he notified police here before the car arrived.

FIRST 100-PASSENGER PLANE

Here's the first picture of the world's largest air liner, built to carry 100 passengers and a crew of twelve. Shown above in its hangar at Friedrichshafen, Germany, this monster Dornier hydroplane recently underwent successful trial flights over Lake Constance, Switzerland. Though it weighs 37 tons, the giant craft, powered by twelve 600-horsepower engines, cleared the water in 28 seconds. The plane is three-decked, 130 feet long and 33 feet high, with a wingspread of 160 feet.

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Those who have read the account of the salvaging of the S-51 as told by Commander Ellsberg, will be interested in the story from any angle. In "I Like Diving" by Tom Eadie, we are told of this perilous undertaking by one of the workers under the sea. The tale of the dangers and difficulties overcome is one of heroism and ingenuity.

The place of religion in modern life is being discussed by all classes of people. The conflict with scientific theories causes many to wonder about established beliefs. The seeming failure of church to meet modern social problems causes another class of people to harbor doubts.

In "Labor Speaks for Itself," edited by Jerome Davis, we have for the first time frank statements from the labor leaders all over the world as to their opinions about religion. No matter what one's own position in regard to religion may be, he is likely to be shocked by some of the unconventional views contained in this case record of attitudes. However, those most violently opposed to them should remember that refusal to print would not alter the fact that such views would continue to function in certain groups.

Cause For Discontent

The laboring man has had some cause to feel discontent with religion as dispensed by the church. To often a less hearty welcome is extended to the laborer than to the more wealthy member of the congregation. The church has seemed to blind itself to dishonest business dealings. At times it has sanctioned labor conditions that could not exist in a truly Christian country.

Moreover, why should those other groups which have been giving labor so many and such long lessons for years in industrial and religious deportment not listen for once to what labor has to say for itself. While the churches issue a special Labor day message to working people annually, ought we not have an authoritative declaration from the heart of labor?

Sincere Christians should be most grateful for those chapters that are most critical. Each reader must ask himself: To what extent are the points of these indictments true?

Are machines for all their power worth the human price that has been paid for them? Certain philosophers hold that machinery is enslaving us. In "Men and Machines," Stuart Chase sets out to discover the extent of our serfdom.

He tells something of the anatomy of machines from the time of James Watt to their startling developments of the present day. Today we have not only machines which managed by man can accomplish practically everything formerly done by hand. We have also mechanical man, which still further decreases the value of manual labor.

Discussion of Machinery

We have a discussion of the part played by machines in the life of an average man. Just what amount of contact does he have with machinery day in and day out? This contact is becoming more and more prevalent. What effect does it have upon the worker's mind? Does it by expanding his leisure time, give him more opportunity for cultural development? Or, in taking away the necessity of thoughtfulness in his job, does it take away the power of thought?

The manifestly good effects of the machine are balanced with those manifestly bad—taking into account, effects which are both good and bad. The conclusions which he reaches by this method are startling and thought provoking. In his brilliant and sound study of the Power Age, we see the utility of blanket judgments for or against the machine. The problem is one that must be carefully observed and studied as is done in the present account.

FAMILY TICKET SALE MEETING WITH SUCCESS

The preliminary family ticket sale for the 1929 Orange County fair is meeting with unusual success, according to a report made to the county fair board today by members of the women's auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans, in charge of the drive.

The entire county has been distracted for the sale and special cooperation is being obtained from auxiliary groups outside the county. It was learned today, Los Angeles, Long Beach, Pomona and Riverside Spanish War auxiliaries already have signified their willingness to assist in the sale.

The various chambers of commerce throughout the county also are aiding the women by selling the family tickets. A house-to-house canvass will start next Tuesday, according to present plans.

The goal of 30,000 tickets has been set by the organization, the profits of which will be used to send an Orange county delegation of auxiliary members to the national convention, in Denver, next month.

REV. REYNOLDS WILL REMAIN IN SANTA ANA

The Rev. W. C. Reynolds, pastor of the First Free Methodist church, Fruit and Minter streets, has just returned from the annual conference of the church, in the conference auditorium on the camp ground at Avenue 60 and Monterey road, in Los Angeles. He has been returned to the Santa Ana pastorate for the second year. Not many pastors were changed.

A change was made in the organization of the conference for the coming year. Last year the three districts were superintended by two travelling district elders, but next year there will be three stationed elders. This means that the elders will hold pastorates and so will not visit the other circuits on the districts unless it becomes necessary. The Rev. C. L. Howland, pastor in Whittier, is the elder for the Los Angeles district; the Rev. C. A. Watson, Glendale, the Pasadena district, and Rev. J. E. Cochran, Phoenix, the Arizona district.

A new method also was employed in the raising of the finances of the conference. The first Sunday $1000 was asked and subscription cards were passed out. When the cards were collected it was found that $1000.01 had been subscribed. The next Sunday $2000 was asked for in the same manner and $2012.20 was pledged. This method was employed for the first time two years ago, when approximately $2500 was asked for. This was oversubscribed by eight cents.

S. A. GROUP TO MEET MOFFETT PARTY TODAY

A number of Orange county men, members of the general dirigible base committee recently appointed by W. C. Jerome, president of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, are in Los Angeles, today meeting with the personnel of the naval airship base board, which arrived in Los Angeles this morning.

Members of the committee also wish to determine just when the investigating body from Washington will arrive in Orange county for the inspection of the four sites that have been selected for the approval of the board. Tentative schedules show that the party, consisting of five navy officers, headed by Rear Admiral Moffett, head of the bureau of aeronautics, is to reach Orange county Friday.

The board has been inspecting various locations all along the Pacific coast and arrived in Los Angeles today from San Francisco, where it made its headquarters while looking over several locations offered in the bay area. Reports from the north state the board has asserted it hoped to have better sites offered for inspection in California than it had seen in the Pacific northwest.

George Raymer, secretary of the chamber of commerce here, stated that the sleet and temperature changes in the north were a bad factor in the maintenance of the huge dirigibles and that these weather changes had a bad effect on the coating and fabric of the bags.

Orange county sites to be presented to the board for inspection comprise three south and southwest of Santa Ana and one near Brea.

MONARCH AIR-MINDED

Here's a king among birdmen on his aeronautical throne. Albert, Belgium's air-minded monarch, is pictured above in the cockpit of his own plane which he flew himself during recent maneuvers at Elsendorn. He often hops off on short solo flights over Brussels—and handles the controls in a royal way.

MARIONETTES ON ANAHEIM PROGRAM

ANAHEIM, July 24.—Children of this and other Orange county cities are looking forward to the fifth out door program to be presented by the city of Anaheim in the city park Thursday evening, when "Cinderella" will be played by the Kegg-Goldsmith marionettes. Mrs. Samuel Kraemer Jr., is responsible for this week's program. The marionettes will wear the costumes of the 18th century.

Raymond Betty and Ruth Fraunfelder, children of Mr. and Mrs. Reynold Fraunfelder of Anaheim, will be presented in Swiss yodeling songs. Fraunfelder was the leader of the Los Angeles Swiss orchestra at one time and the children have appeared on a number of radio programs. They will be accompanied by their mother, who will play a reed organ.

Evarard Stovell, 15-year-old Santa Ana pianist, who won first place in a music contest in 1925, will be heard in a program of selections from Chopin.

And The Judge Didn't Even Tremble

"Who's Who in Santa Ana" was well represented in police court, yesterday, when Judge J. F. Talbot began collecting the little red tickets passed out by police officers for overtime parking.

W. H. "Bill" Spurgeon and Councilman J. F. McBride were among the "guilty" and, along with Gray Farrington and Erik Boockgrevinch, each "coughed up" $2 to pay his fine.

Itching Ends When Zemo Touches Skin

It's wonderful the way soothing, cooling Zemo brings relief to itching skin, sunburn, windburn and clears up bites, pimples and rash. Even in severe cases, itching disappears almost as soon as Zemo touches the skin. To draw out local infection there's nothing better than invisible Zemo. Always keep this family antiseptic on hand. Use it freely. It's safe as can be. 35c, 60c and $1.00.—Adv.

291 Banking Offices in California

The strength, safety and usefulness of Branch Banking has been demonstrated for more than a century

FOR MORE THAN A CENTURY branch banking has been successfully conducted throughout Europe. One institution (in England) has over three thousand six hundred (3600) branches established throughout the British Empire. It was the proved strength, stability, safety and usefulness of the world's great branch banking organizations that decided the founder of the Bank of Italy to establish a similar institution in the United States. The Bank of Italy is a practical demonstration to the nation of the benefits of well-organized, level-headed branch banking. The thinking people of America have placed their stamp of approval on those banking institutions which have a capital structure large enough, and resources diversified and widely distributed to a sufficient extent, to provide the utmost in safety and in financial service.

Bridge Supper at S. A. Country Club Is Delightful

Among the lovely affairs of the month was last night's bridge party and supper given at the Santa Ana Country club by Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Liggett of 2323 Bonnie Brae to compliment their houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Liggett of Portland, Ore. J. A. Liggett is D. E. Liggett's brother.

Tall baskets of Mexican poppies, lilies and sweet peas in tints of lavender and yellow were arranged about the room where card tables were placed for the evening's card games. And at these tables were attractive tallies in the same soft colors.

Following several games, scores were added and it was learned that Mrs. Don Moeley and Fleetwood Ball were high with Mrs. Harold Nelson and Robert Grant, second. Each received a handsome gift while an equally attractive guest prize was awarded Mr. and Mrs. Liggett.

At the supper hour, guests were seated at a long table in the solarium where a long basket of colorful summer flowers centered the table with candles in brass holders casting a soft glow over the various appointments.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Liggett, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Alteman, Mr. and Mrs. Fleetwood Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McKague, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Behols, Mr. and Mrs. Don Moeley, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. John Sexton, Dr. and Mrs. Roland Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Lane, Mr. and Mrs. John Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garner, Herbert Bray and Miss Lucille White of Santa Ana, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grant of St. Louis, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Moeley of Hollywood, Mrs. Grace Freeman and Miss Virginia Hebrank of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Santa Ana Girls Enjoy House Party at Beach

Of the many jolly house parties that are being held at the beaches this month, none is more delightful than that one at Laguna Beach presided over by Miss Susannah Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Alexander, of 1414 1/2 North Main street.

Miss Alexander's guests include Miss Betty Smedley, Miss Elizabeth Downey and Miss Leonora Walker. Mrs. Alexander is spending the week at the beach with them.

Beautiful Appointments Mark Wedding at St. Joseph's

A wedding of beautiful appointments and impressive solemnity was that of Miss Mary Banks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Banks of 702 Spurgeon street, and Dr. Vincent Croal, son of Mrs. Mary Croal of 1015 West Highland avenue, that took place yesterday morning at eight o'clock at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, with the Rev. Father Edward H. Brady of Los Angeles, officiating. The Rev. Father Brady is an old friend of the Banks family.

Quantities of lovely flowers with gladioluses predominating arranged in artistic fashion at the altar of the church made a lovely background for the bridal party that took its stand before the priest.

Stately gladioluses in tones of pink and blue delphinium were combined with greenery and graceful palm fronds in decorating the remainder of the church.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father who later gave her in marriage to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march that was played by Miss Eva Ramsey. She was very lovely in an egg shell ensemble in crepe de chine with smart hat in chateaux and other accessories in tones of tan. She carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley tied with a huge bow of misty tulle.

Miss Frances Dunn of Monrovia, a cousin of the bride, who was the only bridesmaid, preceded her into the church. She was gowned in sea foam green georgette with accessories to harmonize and she carried pink sweet peas and maidenhair fern.

Thomas Croal of Las Vegas, Nev., who came to Santa Ana especially for the wedding served his cousin as best man.

Following the dignified service, the solemn nuptial mass was held when Madame Manuela Budrow, soprano, gave her own arrangement of Gounod's "Ave Maria." Madame Budrow also sang "O Promise Me" and "Until" as a part of the wedding service. She was accompanied by Miss Ramsey.

The happy couple left the church to the accompaniment of the Mendelssohn wedding march and proceeded directly to the home of the bride's parents where the immediate families of the two were guests at a pretty wedding breakfast.

With white flowers centering the table and other appointments in a delicate tint of green, the setting for the breakfast was unusually attractive.

Miss Henrietta Chase To Be Autumn Bride

That Miss Henrietta Chase, pretty brunette daughter of Mrs. Maude H. Chase of 2700 North Main street, is to be among the first autumn brides was announced yesterday at a smart bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Chase and her daughter at McFarland's cafe in Fullerton. For in September Miss Chase will become the bride of John N. Galbraith of Victorville, son of the late N. W. Galbraith and Mrs. Galbraith of this city.

The delightful secret was disclosed at the luncheon tables when guests found tiny gold edged cards in their nut cups bearing the names of the two and the month of the wedding, September.

Each table was centered with a pretty bouquet of sweet peas in pastel tints while other appointments were in the same colors.

Following the luncheon, bridge was enjoyed and when scores were added it was found that Miss Mary Andrews was high and she was presented with a pretty boudoir pillow. Mrs. George Chapman who was second received a dainty powder box while a gray georgette handkerchief consoled Mrs. Bruce Switzer.

In various of their pleasant hostess duties, Mrs. Chase and Miss Chase were assisted by Miss Velma Miller.

Both of the young people are well known in Santa Ana where they attended the local high school and junior college. After their graduation, Miss Chase entered the University of California at Los Angeles where she was a member of the Delta Zeta sorority. For the past year she has been teaching at the McKinley grammar school.

Her fiancé was born in this city and after graduating from the junior college he was employed by the Hayward Lumber company. At present he is assistant manager of the Hayward Lumber company in Victorville.

The guests were Mrs. N. W. Galbraith, Mrs. Ralph Livespire, Mrs. Harold Dresser, Mrs. George Chapman, Mrs. Boyd Munger, Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Visel, Mrs. Charles Cook, Mrs. Harry Lebar, Mrs. James Dickson, Mrs. Leroy Hall, Mrs. Lloyd Redmond, Mrs. Bruce Switzer, Mrs. Frank Miller, Miss Velma Miller, Miss Helen Menges, Miss Maurine Mathes, Miss Gertrude Hasty, Miss Virginia Thatcher, Miss Louise Young, Miss Ruth Langley, Miss Constance Cruikshank, Miss Ethel Richardson, and Miss Henrietta Hall of Santa Ana.

Mrs. Earl Barnes of Riverside, Mrs. Richard Van Blaricom and Miss Helen Martin of Santa Monica, Mrs. Howard Stiles, Mrs. Lewis Reark, Mrs. Bernard Ginn, Mrs. Joseph Ryan, Miss Madge Tucker and Miss Grace Hester of Los Angeles, Miss Dora Rampton and Miss Helen Baynum of Pomona, Miss Winifred Clark of Pasadena, and Miss May Bannow of Kentucky.

YOU and your Friends

Mrs. George Ball and her infant daughter have returned to the Ball home at 2021 Greenleaf street from the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

Mrs. Cecyl Drake and Mrs. Eleanor Elliott and her son, Emmett, left yesterday for Catalina Island for a week's vacation.

P. E. Jarvis of San Diego, post office inspector, is registered at St. Ann's Inn. He is making Santa Ana his headquarters while inspecting several post offices throughout the country.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Leebrecht have returned to their home at 418 1-2 West First street following a two weeks' vacation at Balboa Beach with Mr. Leebrecht's nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Leebrecht of Oak Park. A number of years Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Leebrecht chaperoned the later two for two weeks at Balboa preceding their marriage and the past two weeks' vacation celebrated the ninth anniversary of the occasion.

J. E. Westbrook and his daughter, Miss Vivian Westbrook, of 1315 Santiago avenue left today for a vacation to be spent in Yosemite and San Francisco. The two will be gone for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bowers of this city will motor to Los Angeles Saturday morning to meet Mr. and Mrs. Francis Palmer of Toledo, Ohio, who will arrive for a several weeks' vacation here. Mr. Palmer, who is president of the large firm, Brown, Eager and Hall, of Toledo, made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Bowers when he was a boy. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will also visit Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hehn of Newport road.

Samborn Griffin, son of Mrs. J. G. Parsons of 1403 Spurgeon street, who has been spending the past two months in an extensive tour of the United States, is expected to return home the first week of next month.

Clarence Sprague, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Sprague of 1920 Victoria drive, has returned to Santa Ana following a three weeks' ocean trip to Honolulu. Lawrence Kerr, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Sprague, who is spending the summer months with them, is visiting relatives in Los Angeles this week.

Miss Dorothy McDonald is expected to arrive in Santa Ana Saturday to spend several days at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Guard of 415 South Main street. Miss McDonald attended Santa Ana junior college last year, and has many friends in Santa Ana.

Surprise Party Planned By S. S. Class for Teacher

When the Rev. and Mrs. James H. Hughes were invited to spend Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Guthrie at 82 North Olive street, they little expected the happy surprise that awaited them. Miss Margaret Guthrie, daughter of the home and a member of the Sunday school class which has been taught by Mrs. Hughes, had arranged a class party honoring her.

Dahlias and double asters from the Guthrie gardens were used to decorate the home for the affair. Rook, pit, coo-coo and pig were games enjoyed during the evening. At a late hour punch and wafers were served the guests and a musical program was featured.

Guests included the honored guests, the Rev. and Mrs. Hughes, Miss Esther Vogt, Miss Jeannette Lutz, Miss Catherine Henderson, Miss Kathryn Budd, Miss Helen Wieseman, Miss Helen Bower, Miss Helen Stauffer, Miss Viola Wiley, Miss Fontelle Rentschler, Miss Thelma Shippe, Miss Nadine Toamanc and Miss Betty Howell.

Mrs. Hughes was presented with a gold mounted fountain pen and pencil set by members of the class.

P. T. A. District Plans to Increase Membership

Unless the plans of Mrs. F. W. Kirkpatrick, Huntington Beach, chairman of membership, fourth district P. T. A., miscarry, the district will have a membership of 9000 before the convention of 1930, according to plans made at the membership conference of yesterday at the home of Mrs. Neal Beisel, 417 Cypress avenue.

Father is to have a place in the P. T. A. His name on the roll and his presence at the entertainments planned for the coming year are to be stressed. To achieve the goal many unique and delightful plans are to be worked out.

Suggestions for the art sections were presented by Mrs. Dan Marshall of Laguna Beach, art chairman of the district.

Among the interested listeners were Mrs. Neal Beisel, president of the Fourth District P. T. A., Mrs. H. D. Nichols, of Villa Park, Mrs. L. L. Trickey, of Garden Grove, Mrs. F. H. Greenwood, of Tustin, Mrs. A. F. Graves, Mrs. M. G. Murray, of Oceanview, Mrs. J. E. Bertmann, of Newport, Mrs. L. T. Gilliam, of Placentia, Mrs. Sara G. Bowman, of Newport Beach, Katherine May, Mrs. Lewis Edvardson, of Placentia, Mrs. E. H. Elsner, of Anaheim, Mrs. Lester G. Baldwin, of La Habra, Mrs. C. A. Neighbors, of Orange, Mrs. Ray Neal, of Fullerton, Mrs. Charles Newson, of La Habra, Mrs. R. L. Hedley, Mrs. Ruth McGee, Mrs. C. H. Marcher, Mrs. Fay R. Spangler, Mrs. Roy Beale, Mrs. G. W. Greer, of Fullerton, Mrs. George A. Ferguson, of San Clemente, Mrs. F. F. Heine, Mrs. Roy A. Gowdy, Mrs. Dan Marshall, of Laguna Beach, Mrs. George Sturton, Mrs. L. H. Borden, of Buena Park, Miss Ruth Johnson, of Pasadena, Mrs. W. C. Proctor and Mrs. Helen Gardner.

County Federation to Hold Executive Meeting

Announcement has been made of the next bi-monthly meeting of the executive board of the Orange County Federation of Women's clubs that will be held at the Costa Mesa clubhouse Monday, August 5, starting at 10 a. m.

According to Mrs. Joseph Thurston, president of the county federation, 60 women including presidents of all clubs throughout the county and chairmen of various departments will be present for the meeting.

The morning hours will be devoted to reports and to outlining the year's program. Of special interest will be the apportioning of the state speakers that will be procured through the fund that has been added to from year to year by each club in the county.

A luncheon will be served at noon for which reservations must be made with Mrs. A. P. Nelson of Costa Mesa, this city, not later than August 3.

In the afternoon a musical program, arranged by Mrs. Burton Ellis of Costa Mesa, local chairman of music, will be presented and an address will be given by a speaker to be secured by Mrs. Maurice Moran of that place.

This is the second executive meeting under Mrs. Thurston's regime, the first occurring two months ago in Laguna Beach.

Psychologist to Come To Santa Ana

A child psychologist and educator well known in the east and south is Mrs. Kate Withers Simpson, who has located in Santa Ana as director of the Columbia private school, which will open here early in September.

The Columbia school will offer to the parents of Santa Ana a pre-kindergarten, or nursery school, department for children three, four and five years of age. There will be also a kindergarten and a first, second and third grade primary department.

Rose and Yellow Color Motif Is Used for Dinner

Complimenting Mrs. Dorothy A. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Morris were hosts at an attractive surprise birthday dinner Monday evening at their lovely home on 515 South Broadway.

Carrying out a color scheme of rose and yellow, the hostess used several large baskets of cosmos and posieds throughout the house, centering the dinner table with a similar bouquet. The large birthday cake was decorated in the same colors. Numerous gifts were heaped about the place of the honoree, Mrs. Harrison, who opened them during the evening.

Following the dinner, the guests enjoyed an hour of dancing and music.

Those who attended the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Scheets, Mrs. De La Rochelle, Mrs. Dorothy Harrison, Miss Alice Upson, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris.

PLAN WEINER BAKE

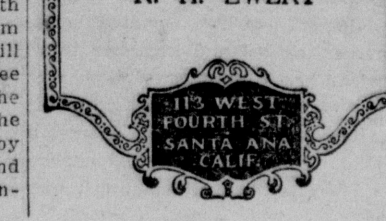

PLACENTIA, July 24.—Members of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, Grace parlor, are planning a weiner bake at Newport Beach Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Annin on the ocean front, near Thirtieth street. Those who wish to swim will meet at 4 o'clock. Supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock, coffee and weiners being furnished by the committee. Other dishes, with the table service, will be brought by those attending. Families and friends of the members are invited to attend.

Plans for Beach Party Are Completed at Meeting

Plans for the beach party and fish bake of the Men's Community Bible class were furthered at the weekly business meeting of the organization, last night, in the First Christian church.

The report of the location committee, recommending that the affair be held in Huntington Beach, was accepted by the class and the date of Tuesday, July 30, was confirmed. The supper will be served on the beach just north of the pier at 6:30 the night of the party.

A menu consisting of baked fresh fish, which will be caught by members of the class the day preceding the affair, baked or Spanish beans, buns, coffee and pie was chosen for the dinner. Members of the class and their guests attending are to furnish their own service. Plates will be furnished by the class. No set price has been fixed on the dinner as it has been the custom of the class in the past to take a collection following the meal to defray expenses.

Arrangements have been made with the management of the plunge at the beach to make special rates for tickets for those who wish to enjoy a swim and this privilege will be available after 5 o'clock. Transportation will be furnished to members of the class who have no way to get to the beach.

Mrs. and Mrs. James Return From North

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. James of 1318 North Broadway have returned from a motor trip to Redwood park in the Santa Cruz mountains, where they visited the Ben Lomond lodge owned and operated by the Santa Ana man's brother, Lester James. The delightful journey covered a mileage of 870 miles and extended over a period of 10 days.

Many interesting features of the outing were disclosed today. Visits to the mountain lodges of Ben Lomond, Brookdale and the Big Basin, Berry Creek falls and Howden castle on the San Lorenzo river were filled with pleasure for the local people.

Mrs. Lester James, wife of the owner, plans to establish an all-year grammar grade school for girls at the Ben Lomond lodge which covers a territory of 10 acres, according to Mr. and Mrs. James.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Fullerton auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans will hold open meeting Thursday night at the Legion hall in Fullerton. The business meeting will be followed by a program and cards.

Santa Ana Folk Enjoy Hunting Grunion

A party of Santa Ana folk who have been enjoying a series of grunion hunts at beach cities near here held a picnic dinner and outing last night. The dinner was held at the marsh lake in the Laguna canyon and members of the party amused themselves with attempts to catch the mud hens on the lake.

From there they motored to Seal Beach and after various games on the sand, hunted grunion.

The same party enjoyed a similar hunt at Balboa Beach Monday night and included Mr. and Mrs. Ray Heim, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heim, Bert Mueller, Bernard Haupt and Miss Irene Heim.

Teachers Enjoy Picnic At Exposition Park

Members of the faculties of Santa Ana high school and junior high schools who are attending the summer session at University of Southern California met one evening last week for a pleasant picnic at Exposition park.

A delicious informal dinner was served under the trees, and following the dinner, the group enjoyed several hours of games, strolling over the lovely park grounds, and chatting.

Among those who attended the picnic were H. G. Nelson, A. D. Hoenshel, Walter Egger, Mrs. Ethel Sinke, Mrs. Frances Beeson, Miss Hazel Thrasher, Miss Iva Carl, Miss Mildred Meyers and Miss Ruth Gordon.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

For over 60 years Scott Rouse of Toledo, Iowa, had proclaimed himself a woman hater. A sign on the forbidding fence around his shack warned "Women Keep Out."

Recently Rouse, aged 80, was found gagged with his own beard and bound to suffocation. He died later in a hospital.

Neighbors explained that an early tragic love affair soured him on life and women, especially.

LITTLE SYMPATHY

Probably there are some who think that his, perhaps not untimely end, considering his age, but at least unnecessarily hard end, was about what he had coming to him, or at least, only about what he could expect.

For the mass of humans are not hit so hard by these heart tragedies that they can understand or sympathize very much.

It is queer when a man so succumb, for tradition has it that man can pass on from one heartache to a new joy. Women are given a little more leeway with their emotions, even when they are scored if they succumb too much.

POOR GEORGE!

The new fascinating "Intimate Journal of George Sand" probably can find little understanding today; not even with the world of women, most of whom simply cannot comprehend how, in what terms this "world of so many more interests than the woman who pined from love affairs had," any woman could be so crushed by what seems so trivial to them—trivial, in words at least.

George Sand's Journal or collection of letters to her lover, Alfred de Musset, are grist for the modern psychiatrist who finds here a typical neurotic woman genius, utterly incapable of being normal while disturbed by her love shock.

But how much George Sand may have deserved criticism in her own day or now, surely nothing about her and her attitude can so shock us as to learn that her lover to whom she sent this soul-naked collection of letters turned them over to his brother and friend to satisfy their curiosity and interest in a lovesick woman.

One can remember scores of men who have done this to women whom they once loved and the women who still loved them. D'Annunzio did it to Duse, to cite just one other cad like de Musset. Would we had more Isadora Duncans to turn the tables occasionally.

THE DIVORCE CITY

Chicago earned her title of "the nation's divorce capital" this last year more than ever before, according to figures just released which show to every three marriages last year.

Eighty-five per cent of the divorces were granted on a charge of desertion and cruelty, which really means very little, for when a divorce can be gained for nothing else, that old hokum, "desertion and cruelty" is glibly dragged out.

The MIXING BOWL

by ANN MEREDITH

Another Idea in Breakfast Foods

Ready-cooked breakfast foods are prime favorites in most homes but at times a bit expensive for the table budget. However, that lame dog can be gotten over the stile by making your own cereal.

Just take a quart of bran and sprinkle over it about three table-spoons of honey, well warmed to make it flow easily. With two forks lift and turn the bran to mix with the honey, then spread it out on shallow pans or clean paper to dry.

When dry, slip it into a hot oven or under the broiler flame to brown lightly. The finished product has a delicious nutty flavor. Serve it with cream, or with fruit and cream.

For child and adult alike, this cereal supplies the B vitamin necessary to growth and healthy nervous systems. It contains calcium (lime) and acts as an efficient janitor to sluggish intestinal elimination.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Pineapple and Orange Loaf
1 cup blanched almonds, shredded
1 box orange jello
Juice of 1 lemon
1 small can grated pineapple
1 cup heavy cream
½ cup powdered sugar

When cake and berries or your favorite dessert all fail to appeal to you, try something entirely new and as swanky as a new party dress—and that something is the dessert I am publishing today. It can be made just as successfully in the old type icebox as in the iceless refrigerator.

Shell the almonds and blanch in boiling water. Shred them lengthwise and scatter over the bottom and sides of a mold. To make them stick rub the mold lightly with soft butter, just a little, though, the finished dessert must not have a buttery appearance when unmolded.

Prepare but a little over half of the orange jello. Add the lemon juice to make it pleasantly acid and let it cool and partly jell before pouring over the almonds—otherwise they loosen up and fall in an untidy heap in the bottom of the mold. While the orange jello is setting itself, let's whip the cream stiff, add the powdered sugar and the can of grated pineapple with its juice. Mix lightly and pour over the orange jelly part. Cover with waxed paper and put into the freezing chamber of the electric refrigerator for four hours. Dip the mold in hot water to turn out.

—mostly because, despite our laws to the contrary, the bulk of all divorces are uncontested and are a matter of collusion between the parties, as they should be.

and serve the loaf in slices with small cakes.

For ordinary iceboxes, unless you can pack the mold in ice and rock salt, it is advisable to add a teaspoonful of dissolved gelatin to the pineapple, allowing it to harden slightly before mixing with the whipped cream. If mixed as for the iceless refrigerator the cream and pineapple juice are apt to separate and ruin the dessert.

Some 1850 calories full of "vim, vigor and vitality," make the grand total in this sumshus dessert serving eight people. Calories for the cake are your business.

"Stretching the Food Budget" is the subject under discussion in the current leaflet. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a free copy and after reading it write and share your successful ideas with the readers of the Mixing Bowl.

We haven't had a spinach recipe for a long time, so, tomorrow's recipe will be Spinach and French Eggs. ANN MEREDITH.

ORANGE

ORANGE, July 24.—Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Edwards are enjoying a week's vacation, a part of which they will spend fishing in the north.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Schre and daughter, Gloria, North Tustin street, returned the first of the week from Arcadia, where they visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Sequist, former neighbors at Good Thunder, Minn.

Judge and Mrs. G. W. Ingle have as house guests, Mrs. Erika D. Thompson and daughter, Roberta, of Fresno. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were residents of this city before moving north.

Mrs. George Venners and daughter, Betty Jane, expect to leave soon for Detroit, Mich., for a visit with relatives.

The next meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club will be held at the Orient cafe. At a recent meeting of the organization, a waffle supper was enjoyed in the home of Miss Ella and Miss Gertrude Klander. Miss Mildred Anderson made high score at the card game which followed the supper and Miss Leona Freeman was consoled.

Mrs. Layton S. Hawkins, Mount Vernon, New York, arrived yesterday for a visit in the home of her cousins, Miss Mary Hawkins.

Six Ways You Gain

—when you ride the Big Red Cars

Pacific Electric

- 1 Low Cost
Commutation fares to Los Angeles are far lower than other forms of transportation. Figure the saving in your own individual case. You save the cost of parking fees, too.
- 2 Added Leisure
Every time you ride, you win extra minutes to rest, read or study.
- 3 Less Nerve Strain
You avoid traffic and parking worries. You arrive rested, ready for the day's activities.
- 4 Pleasure for your family
When you ride the Red Cars, your family has the use of your automobile all day.
- 5 Safety
The motorman's whole job—the Pacific Electric's responsibility—is to get you safely to your destination.
- 6 Convenience
The Big Red Cars travel the direct route, mostly over private rights-of-way. Investigate the convenient schedules. Try the Red Cars the next time you go to Los Angeles.

'ARK' IS FEATURED BY ANIMAL SCENES

Two crocodiles threatened to disrupt the peace and harmony of the great ark during the filming of the scenes for "Noah's Ark," which closes in the Fox Walker Friday. Unlike the animals brought into the ark by Noah several thousands of years ago, the crocodiles began the settlement of a quarrel in the middle of a scene being made in the ark's interior. Elephants trumpeted, tigers and lions roared, and bedlam broke loose before the combatants could be separated. A huge python was the only member of the animal cast remaining calm.

The scenes of the interior of the ark are especially interesting as it is said that few pictures purporting to show the interior of the ark have ever been seen. The scenes of the flood are shown as a party of refugees from the World war are told the story of the flood by a chaplain who is a member of the group.

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, July 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tyler and family have had as their guests, Mrs. Guy Gould of Wisconsin, aunt of Mrs. Tyler; Mrs. Z. E. Hair and two daughters, Mrs. E. R. Hair and children of Arlington, and Mr. and Mrs. Jones and children, of Chula Vista.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barnes entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Griswold and Mr. and Mrs. Ferris Kelly.

Mr. and Mrs. James Adams, of Huntington Park, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hankey.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter and daughter May, moved this week to their home in Santa Ana. Mr. May has been with the Standard Oil company here for six years and Mrs. May was principal of the grammar school here.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hankey entertained the young people of the Christian Endeavor society at a watermelon "feed" in their home here.

The Boy Scouts of Capistrano sponsored a show at Cason's theater Friday evening. Capt. H. H. Hammer of San Clemente, who was to speak, was unable to attend. Mr. Griswold, scoutmaster, gave a short talk. Billy Magee was awarded a pin for selling the most tickets and second prize was given to Edwardo Lobo.

Mrs. May Swanson and three young daughters, of Hollywood, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McCarty.

Mrs. Charles Crumrine has been with her sister, Miss Brubaker, of Los Angeles, who has been very ill.

'DANGEROUS CURVES' CLOSES TOMORROW

The shrill music emitted by the steam calliope has a meaning all its own—for many years it has brought to the average person the magic message—"The circus is coming." The familiar sound is heard in "Dangerous Curves," the intensely interesting story of the "big top" which closes in the Fox Broadway Thursday and in which Clara Bow, red-headed and vivacious, is seen and heard as a circus troupier.

All of the phases of circus life are shown in the film which is the second talking picture to have been made by Miss Bow. The role of the little actress gives her an opportunity for considering something beside being the life of the party.

all roads are better roads with De Soto Six

When the Chrysler-built De Soto Six was designed, emphasis was placed on its easy riding.

Balanced spring suspension, a minimum of unsprung weight, low-hung body, rubber engine mountings and Chrysler-selected hydraulic shock absorbers, front and rear, make the De Soto Six the steadiest riding medium-weight motor car on the road today.

De Soto Six takes the turns safely at high speeds; does not tend to swing when suddenly slowed down; rides remarkably easily over the roughest surfaces; and at all times gives the impression of a far larger, heavier and more expensive automobile.

We invite you to make your own comparison. Pick the worst road and step on the gas. For easy-riding qualities alone, apart from other features of remarkable performance, you will find the De Soto Six considerably superior to any other make of motor car selling below $1,000.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The Tynmites ran up o'er a hill as Clowny panted, "What a thrill we'd have if we could catch that train. I hope it comes nearby. Of course our run may be in vain, but worth it for what we may gain. I still can see the engine smoke go floating toward the sky."

"Let's pick up speed. We're running slow. Come on, you Tynmites, let's go! I'm going to run away from you unless you travel fast!" The other three then raced a bit, and Clowny nearly had a fit. He thought that he was showing speed, but they all raced right by.

"Ha, ha, ha," the others laughed aloud. "Sometimes you seem a bit too proud. It's your turn now to catch us or we'll leave you far behind." "Oh, no you won't," brave Clowny cried. "If funny tricks like that are tried, I'll let you all run out of sight, and shucks, I will not mind."

But then the race came to a stop. They reached a bank and had to drop down on some little railroad tracks. They made it safe and sound. "I hope these are the tracks," said one, "where that big train is going to run. I still can hear it coming." Say, I wonder where it's bound?"

"Oh, what do we care where it goes?" was Scouty's answer. "Goodness knows that it will be a lot of fun to ride it anyway. The engineer can do the work and we'll just sit around and shirk. Why, when I think of such a ride I want to shout 'Hurray!'"

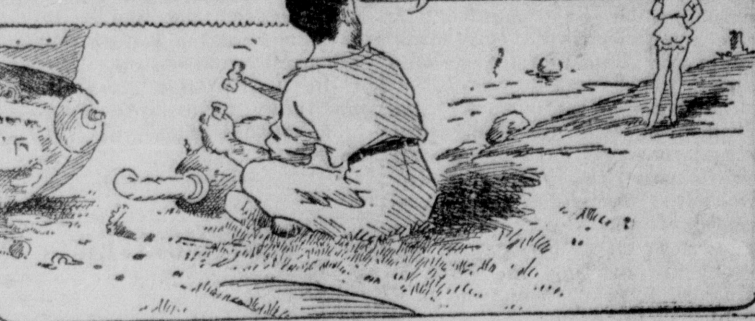

Then 'round the bend the big train came. The smokestack puffed up smoke and flame. "Don't hop the front," cried Scouty. Some place better we will find. They'll stand back a little while. Then Clowny, with a merry smile, said, "Hurry now! This is our chance. We'll all hop on behind."

(What a surprise the Tynies get in the next story.)

INVESTING TIME AND DOLLARS

A few hours a day, equivalent to six days out of the month, invested along with $14,000 in cash will conservatively bring you $3000 per year now and in a few years double that amount. This will figure for you 7% net on your money and $1000 net to you for your services. When your income has doubled, you still get 7% on your money and $4,000 per year for your 6 days per month labor. The increase, of course, is gradual and each year there is a gain in income. And there's nothing so mysterious about it, either. It can be accomplished on a certain very fine 10-acre grove on which we hold the selling control. Question us further.

UNEMPLOYMENT

A net increase of 650,000 in unemployment in 1927 over the number of unemployed in 1920 does not at all signify that our phenomenal prosperity is chimerical. Figures at hand which prove prosperity, beyond a doubt. At the request of a subcommittee of President Coolidge's conference on unemployment a force of economists, engineers, and statisticians investigated recent economic changes. They brought to light the fact that "real wages" and salaries have increased from 92 to 122, or 33 per cent in the United States in the past eight years. The American workman can purchase twice as much with his weekly wages as the workman in London, and four times as much as the workman in Rome, according to figures compiled by the International Labor Office of the League of Nations.

The expenditure of the American people for general education increased 250 per cent between 1914 and 1926 and a 900 per cent gain for high schools and a 350 per cent increase for free college and university education. In the same period, public health and recreation expenditures increased over 140 per cent. It is the American workman who has manifested most evidently the increase in "real wages" for the capitalist had all the bath tubs, automobiles, and radios he could use.

The explanation of an increase of 650,000 in unemployment is obvious to anyone who has noted even one detail of the change in industry during this same period. Lumping all industries together, the output per person engaged in them increased 39 per cent in the six years between 1919 and 1925 and 22 per cent in the one year of 1922.

These figures, side by side with the increase in unemployment, reveal the great changes which have resulted from mechanical inventions and improvements and scientific management. The situation is fine for industry and prosperity and the employed and the capitalist, but what about the increase of 650,000 in the number of unemployed in seven years' time with the same forces which have contributed to the increase still at work?

This economic development has resulted in a realignment of workers' interests. Those workers who are employed are, today, working in harmony with the capitalist and entrepreneur. Today the cleavage in the ranks of industry is between the employed and the unemployed, with the latter without organization or any other support except hope.

According to Evans Clark, writing in the Survey Graphic, "Into the gap between 92 and 122, which represents the gain in working man's purchasing power, the radical movement has sunk practically out of sight and out of mind." During the five years between 1916 and 1921 there were, on the average, three strikes or lockouts for every one in four years between 1922 to 1926 and three times as many employees were involved. In 1919 five times as many disputes were recorded as in 1927, involving ten times as many disputants.

But industry in its prime condition is showing men over forty out of employment, together with all the less efficient. It need pick only the best for its service and can well afford to advance their wages to a marvelous degree. The rest are a pressing social and economic problem.

It is not a situation with which the fearful can cope. These unemployed are not to be considered as a dangerous menace for which we can arm, but rather as an economic and social problem with us today, side by side with our prosperity. It is far more serious than a strike in one particular industry, for conciliation and council can settle such disagreements. This is a problem which strikes at the very roots of our social consciousness.

The suggested solution of the theorists has been: increase consumption to keep abreast of output. A suggestion wholly inadequate because scientific management quite evidently more than keeps pace with the increased demand which has been created by intensive and wholesale advertising, not to mention promotion of new foreign markets.

One of two solutions presents itself: Either a larger sharing with all workers entitled to receive it of the benefits of machinery and scientific management or a tremendous increase in outlay for charity. The latter solution as a permanent one is not healthy.

Where there's a will there's a way. There is no Solomon in the United States Senate today, says a senator. Maybe not, but there still is a Moses.

BACK TO AN OLD TRADITION

It is extremely interesting to read that the United States lines are planning to build two huge new ocean liners, each of them larger than the Leviathan. What makes it interesting chiefly is the fact that these big ships will be built in America and will fly the American flag.

Before the Civil War, American ship builders and owners were in the forefront of the ocean transportation field. The speedy clipper ships turned out at New York and Boston were as good as any afloat, and were extremely good investments.

Then our ocean commerce dwindled; and it has been many years since any large-scale building for the trans-Atlantic trade has been done in this country. The present move of the United States lines is merely a return to the old tradition.

THE ETHICS OF GANGLAND

All over the country, in all the large cities, the racketeers are carrying on a murderous warfare against those of their own group or of other groups who violate the ethics of gangland. And the friends of the murdered are as mum as those who perpetrate the murders. The police are baffled because the ethical code of gangland demands silence no matter who is offended. In Boston the other day the young son of one of a group of bootleggers, who ply their business in that city, was kidnapped, brutally murdered, and his body was thrown in the marshes. The father and mother of the boy were broken hearted. They know pretty well who perpetrated the dastardly deed, but fear and the code of the underworld forbids giving information to the police.

This murderous system flourishes all over the country, men are "taken for a ride," and their dead bodies are thrown in the ditch by the roadside. None of the murderers are apprehended. The warfare goes on despite all the vigilance of the police. There are those who say, let the thing go on; let them kill each other off. But the Boston incident indicates that the murders are not going to stop with those immediately concerned. Besides, the existence of a group or groups within a civilized and orderly society taking law into their own hands cannot be tolerated for a moment. It would carry us back to the middle ages when feuds were rife, and no man's life was safe. Italy has rooted out the Camorra and the Mafia. From the names of many involved in these gangland feuds, Capone, di Mora, Arnoldo, and the like, it would seem as if the scene has shifted to the United States.

Sooner or later drastic means will have to be employed to root out these racketeers. The police of our big cities ought to know who are engaged in this lawless business, and each individual concerned should be under constant surveillance. The professional gunmen who act as hired assassins should likewise be watched. Their places of abode could be searched for guns. A vigilant police ought to be able to do more than is being done. This murderous business ought to be stopped.

England Views the Talkies

Christian Science Monitor

In London the talkies appear to be going from one success to another; but in the provinces they have just encountered a circumstance that has introduced a curious check into their career. A company which controls cinemas in a large number of towns has been wont to make its orchestra a prominent feature of the entertainment, an orchestral selection on the stage always having proved one of the most successful items in its programs. But with the coming of the talkies the orchestra in one of these cinemas in the north of England has been disbanded. Now in the north, where unemployment is much more serious than in the flourishing south, the hardship of human labor displaced by a mechanical invention is keenly appreciated, and public sympathy has so definitely expressed itself that, contrary to all expectation, the first talkie in this particular city has been played to half-empty houses.

This, of course, is only a partial setback, from which the talkies will, no doubt, speedily recover, but it is worth noting as a commentary on the relations between human and mechanical labor, a problem to which a hundred years' familiarity has not yet produced a satisfactory solution. Complaints about the technical defects of these films, which at present are rife in the English press, will also quickly lose much of their sting with the continued application of laboratory research to the industry.

A more interesting attack on this new form of entertainment is that launched in anticipation a year ago by Ashley Dukes. In Mr. Dukes's opinion the more successfully realistic the talking pictures become, the more nearly will they be approaching their doom, because they will then be inviting more and more insistent comparison with the theater. When the talking apparatus reaches perfection, and the film is colored and stereoscopic, people will say, "This is almost as real as the theater," and when people say that, they will go to the genuine article in the theater instead.

The weak point in this interesting theory is the assumption that the genuine article in the theater is readily accessible to the great mass of the people. Unfortunately, outside London and half a dozen large cities, it is not, and the theatrical fare provided for the rest of the country by inferior touring companies is as mechanical a production of the original metropolitan performance in its way as any concoction of celluloid and machinery.

Fools' Laughter

San Diego Union

Fools' laughter has heralded the inception of practically every great advance recorded in the long history of human progress. That observation has been reiterated, times without number. The fools have been made more foolish, time and again, by the eventual triumph of the innovations they ridiculed. The fools have been reproved, reasoned with, exhorted, in an endeavor to mitigate the embarrassment of their braying—all to no effect. An innovation today, as in the by-ways of ancient Rome, is still certain to provoke its quota of hearty guffaws. The fool, generically speaking, does not learn. If he did, he might not be a fool.

We note with vicarious humiliation that ill-advised persons are tittering at the campaign now being waged in New York City by Dr. Thomas Darlington, physician, elder in the church, and former metropolitan health commissioner.

Dr. Darlington is appearing in public wearing a poplin smock, floppy poplin trousers, a cotton union suit, shoes and socks. He maintains his trousers in status quo with suspenders. He is cool while the city awelters. And yet he is being laughed at.

Fools' laughter is often actuated by something other than simple-minded mirth. Sometimes it is fear. Sometimes it is a desire to conceal a suspicion of one's own inferiority. In Dr. Darlington's case, we more than suspect, the laughter is actuated by envy.

A warm day is Nature's way of warning the well-dressed man that he is a fool for dressing as he does. Dr. Darlington heeds the warning and modifies his costume in accordance. The fool flouts the warning; and thinks by laughing to disguise the fact that he perspires in consequence of his folly.

Watch Out for "Side-Door Pullman" Tourists!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A KIND WORD FOR THE TURK

The Turk has discarded the ways
Of rancor and discord and strife;
A laudable wish he displays
For a quiet and peaceable life.
Convinced he has long been too grossly effete
He intends to make over his nation,
And means that it shortly shall copy, complete,
Our American civilization.

But the Turk, as will shortly appear,
Must decidedly ignorant be
Of the customs we have over here
In this land of the brave and the free.
His people he hopes to become quite like ours
In the not too far distant hereafter
And so he is sternly exerting his powers
With the aim of repressing the grafter.

We wish him no end of success;
But he must be a little bit daft
If he thinks we have learned to repress
The great institution of graft.
We have said to ourselves since George Washington's day
That we meant to fight graft to a finish
But the years one by one have gone fleetingly away
And it does not so much as diminish.

If the Turk can succeed in his plan,
As soon as results shall appear
We Yankees will rise to a man
And give him a long rousing cheer.
If the custom of graft he has learned to efface,
We will own we are beaten all hollow;
In an old, and as yet, indeterminate race
He can lead, and we gladly will follow.

PLENTY OF PREPAREDNESS

A writer deprecates our lack of military training. But we could draft several hundred thousand gunmen if they were needed, all of them must be pretty good shots by now.

ALMOST A RECORD

New York's police commissioner has thus far been highly successful at unsolving murder mysteries.

HARD TO PLEASE

Apparently if the farmers could have their way they would take the half billion dollars Congress has appropriated, and let the relief go.

Because It Poured
In PeoriaBy WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Do you remember the court room scene in "Light'ning" in which the weeping blonde sought a divorce?
"Why," demanded the judge, "did you marry this man?"
Replied the lady vaguely: "We were in Peoria. And it rained all the week."

Used to feminine irrelevancies, his honor brushed this one aside.

"Yes, yes," he persisted, "but why did you marry this—er—man?"

The petitioner regarded him mournfully. "I don't know, judge," she gulped. "It—it seemed all right at the time."

Many years ago we contracted a most unhappy marriage. We became wedded to an Economic Theory. "Wage earners as a class can never rise above the lowest level of subsistence." This was the way in which the groom was introduced to us. Introduced by very respectable and well-meaning sponsors.

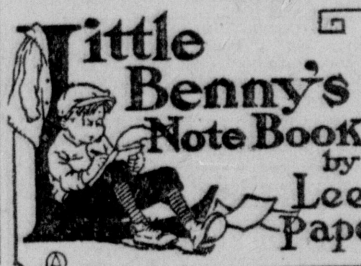

We don't know why we married this derelict. Looking back, it seems incredible that we didn't have more sense. No doubt it seemed all right at the time. But association with this doleful e'er-do-well has all but strangled our initiative and killed our hope.

At least we have enough spirit to demand a divorce. When we get it any Economic Theory who wants to interest us would better be stout and cheerful, and able to support us in the style of which we have every right to become accustomed.

We're not going to tie up again to a total loss, no matter who introduces him.

Not even if it pours in Peoria.

Last Saturday afternoon I was out about out on account of several reasons, the chief one being on account of mixing flour with ma's powder in her powder puff thing to save her money in case she couldn't tell the difference, one she did ride away, and I argued about 20 minutes to prove powder wasent any prettier than flour and maybe not as helthy, because what we can put in our inside we certyn awt to be able to put on our outside, ony ma didn't feel like lissenng to any ar-

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

THE ART OF FAILING

The secret of succeeding lies in knowing how to fail.
It is not difficult to learn how to succeed; that is to say, it is easy to learn how to do some fairly routine job well.

But to learn how to fail is a real test of a man's mettle.

I was once associated with a very successful business man. At first I thought of him as functioning flawlessly in every situation. I thought that, unlike the rest of us, he always went directly to the heart of every issue, saw quickly and clearly just what should be done, and acted with complete certainty of success. And I dreamed of a day when I might master this art of complete certainty of action.

"I am sure," he said to me one day when I had spoken admiring-ly of his consistently successful operations, "I am sure that I make as many mistakes today as I ever made. There is a difference, however. In my youth I usually fell backward; now I usually fall forward. At least, I think I do. And that makes a difference of two full lengths as to where my head and brains are."

I learned from him that success does not rest upon infallible judgment, but upon the courage to experiment and the ability to learn from mistakes.
"No mistakes and no success make a bad record," was a favorite comment of his.

He knew that experimentation may at any moment produce a result that will pay for a hundred failures.

The more successful the man, the more failures will be found in his record.

Thomas A. Edison once suggested that nine hundred failures did not discourage him, for then he knew of nine hundred ways a given thing could not be done successfully.

Failure is a more fruitful schoolmaster than facile success.
It is futile to look for a system that will spell sustained success.

Modern life and modern enterprise are changing too rapidly to make it safe to depend upon any system.

Success depends upon the experimental temper and the capacity to learn from failures.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

MY CHILD

I wish mothers really meant what they said when they say,
"My child is different." Most of them don't. At least they do not say it from their hearts for the thing they seem to dread most is that their child might be different from all others.

The doctor who specializes in the care of little children sends out word that certain vegetables are good for children. Notice please that he does not say ALL children. He just says these vegetables are good for children.
Immediately children all over the land must eat these good vegetables daily or their mothers are frantic with fear.

Prolonged study of childhood brings the declaration that children need a daily nap. All children get that nap, at least the chance to get it. But here and there a child refuses to sleep.
Immediately the mother is anxious. All children ought to sleep in the afternoon but this one won't. What is to be done?

Most children learn to read about the sixth year but there are children who begin to read at three years of age. Others refuse to read until they are seven.
Are those who delay to be forced to read or those who start early held back? Or are they to be permitted their differences?

We have studied the relation between heights and weights and the years children have lived. From that study we made a table. Children of a certain age and height ought to weigh so many pounds.

But some children weigh more and some weigh less. Shall the heavier one be reduced or the lighter one fed up?
Go carefully. The findings of the experts are precious to all of us who train children. They are our guide and our defense against neglect and ignorance. But nobody ever said they were a finality. The more expert the doctor, the more skilled the specialist, the stronger his caution. "This we have found to be so of a great group of children. Consider these facts in regarding your child but remember always he is an individual child and individuality is based on differences."

When you say "My child is different," have you a reason for saying so? Have you studied him in the light of the specialists findings and discovered wherein he differs? Or are you excusing the child and yourself from following the clearly marked road to health and happiness through discipline and happy opportunity for self help?

It is by bringing out the child's best differences and eliminating his poor ones that we educate a child to his fullest possibilities.
Diet and school work and conduct and the daily routine are related to the child as he is. The general rule must somewhere be adapted to him because he is somewhere, somewhere, different.

Do you mean anything real when you say your child is different?

SETTLEMENT OF DETROIT

Sieur De La Mothe Cadillac first commandant of the French territory around Lake Michigan, made the first permanent settlement of the site of Detroit on July 24, 1701.

Detroit, however, had been visited by Frenchmen as far back as 1648, but history dates its founding on the day Cadillac arrived and built Fort Pontchartrain and established a small trading station.

In 1760, an English force under Major Rogers drove the Frenchmen out. In 1778, a new fort was built. At this time, Detroit numbered 300 living in rude log cabins.

At the end of the Revolutionary War, Detroit passed into the hands of the Americans.

However, the English flag again ruled over Detroit for a few months during the war of 1812 when General Hull surrendered the post to a British force under General Brock. It was returned to the Americans in 1813.

Detroit was incorporated as a town in 1802.

In recent years, Detroit has passed the million mark in population.
